Yanks Continue Attacking Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force pilots pressed their war against the Hanoi area with unrelenting fury today, bombing a key railway and highway bridge across the Red River four miles from the center of the North Vietnamese capital.

The steel and concrete bridge carries the only rail line between Red China and the North Vietnamese capital, the U.S. Command said.

U.S. spokesmen were unable to give an immediate assessment of damage to the bridge. They said it was a steel and concrete structure with five spans, 738 feet long and 20 feet wide, and the center span is movable to allow passage of ships.

Other Air Force raiders from Thailand made the second attack in two days of an electrical transformer site seven miles north of Hanoi.

It was the third consecutive day of American raids on prime targets in North Vietnam's Hanoi-Haiphong heartland.

Pilots returning from the raids reported heavy opposition from antiaircraft fire, surface-to-air missiles and MIG jets. The American spokesman made no report of any planes downed, but a dispatch from Hanoi to Tass, the Soviet news agency, said a missile brought down one plane near Hanoi in flames and that Radio Haiphong reported four American planes and a helicopter were shot down there.

There was no immediate American announcement of any raids today in the Haiphong area, however.

The U.S. Command did announce the loss of two more American planes over North Vietnam Tuesday, raising the number admitted lost Monday and Tuesday to six during the strikes on MIG airfields and key targets around Hanoi and Haiphong. U.S. spokesmen said 516 American planes now have been lost in the air war against North Vietnam.

In the ground war, U.S. Marines battled strong enemy forces in the rugged mountains below the demilitarized zone Tuesday and reported 14 Marines killed and 38 wounded in three engagements.

Tuesday night another Marine company sweeping a mountain area near the scene of the earlier clashes ran into an estimated reinforced enemy company in what were termed well-prepared positions. Nine Marines were killed and eight were wounded. Artillery barrages backed up the Marines, but again enemy losses were unknown.

North Vietnam claimed that 12 U.S. planes were shot down over Haiphong Tuesday and three over Hanoi. It also reported that an American pilot who came down in the Hanoi area was badly hurt and died later in the day.

North Vietnam's official news agency also charged that American planes shot up the British freighter Dartford in Haiphong harbor Tuesday and wounded six of its crewmen, two of them seriously.

The 2,739-ton Dartford is owned by a British company in Hong Kong, but the owners said it was under charter to another company which a spokesman refused to identify. Shipping sources in Hong Kong said most if not all of the crew were Chinese, but the company spokesman refused to confirm this and said the company had no information on the alleged attack.

The announced target in the Haiphong raid was the big cement plant 1.1 miles from the center of the city, and the North Vietnamese news agency charged that the raiders killed or wounded "more than 100 civilians" and demolished a hospital. It said many of the victims were patients and medical workers.

A government spokesman in London said it was not certain whether the slicks were fresh from the wreck or old oil that had been trapped in coves. But Sidney Grieve, one of the local officials who made the helicopter survey, said the oil was new and "couldn't have come from anywhere but the reef."

Grieve said the wreckage had been shaken up by storms in the past few days and this could have freed oil that remained in it.

Oil Slicks Reappearing In England

LAND'S END, England (AP) — Southwest England's beach resorts sounded new appeals for help today after the appearance of more oil slicks that may have come from the wreck of the Torrey Canyon.

Local officials urged the British government to blow up the almost submerged remains of the American-owned supertanker on the Seven Stones reef seven miles off the southwest tip of England.

A helicopter survey found 30 miles of oil slicks drifting toward the once golden sands around the southwest coast. In some places the oil was only 50 yards offshore.

The Royal Navy was ordered to check again on the wreck of the 61,263-ton tanker, which hit the reef in a storm March 18 and spilled millions of gallons of back onto the bays and beaches of Cornwall and France's Brittany coast. After Royal Air Force planes bombed the wreck repeatedly, the bulk was declared free of its oil, and hundreds of workers had been making steady progress at clearing the beaches.

A government spokesman in London said it was not certain whether the slicks were fresh from the wreck or old oil that had been trapped in coves. But Sidney Grieve, one of the local officials who made the helicopter survey, said the oil was new and "couldn't have come from anywhere but the reef."

MONROE, Ohio (AP) — Nine-year-old Mary Linda Moncreif was found safe early today after having been missing since about 9 o'clock Tuesday night.

After the child was reported missing, Monroe police and 40 to 50 volunteers searched in and around Monroe all night. Mary Linda was found along a creek bank behind the Presbyterian Home for the Aged. She was in a hut she had built with moss and branches.

GRIEF TO JOY — Mrs. Lillian Brown weeps on her husband's shoulder after learning that their son, Cpl. Dennis Brown of Hinckley, Ohio, was not killed in Vietnam. After making funeral arrangements, they learned from a Marine Corps spokesman that Dennis is alive after all and well.

Marine Was Reported Dead, But Turns Up Alive, Well

CLEVELAND (AP) — An 18-year-old Marine corporal reported killed in Vietnam called his parents from the war-torn country early today and told them he is coming home.

The young Marine, Dennis Brown, a two-time Purple Heart winner, was reported killed last weekend. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Brown of near-by Hinckley, were informed Sunday morning he was killed.

Monday morning, however, the Browns were told that "a terrible mistake has been made. Your son is alive and well."

"Our first reaction was 'are you making another mistake' Brown said. 'My God, don't tell us unless you are absolutely certain. I had just completed the funeral arrangements and we didn't want to hear they had made a mistake again.'"

"Even though they've told us he's alive, after what we've been through we want to hear him," Brown said.

The Browns got a call from Dennis about 4:30 a. m. today.

"I'm fine, I'm fine. Don't worry," Dennis said to his parents. Asked if he knew of the error, he said simply, "Yes, I know. I was told."

"I could hear Dennis," Mrs. Brown said. "He sounded far away, but I could hear him clearly. He was leaving on the first plane in the morning."

Mrs. Brown said a general called her husband Tuesday and said there was a request to take Dennis out of the front lines, especially because of his two previous Purple Hearts. He will be home for 30-day leave before being reassigned, she said.

The decision on his assignment after his leave will be up to him, she said, but he won't be required to return to Vietnam.

"Every time I read that a mother got a telegram, I'm going to go through it all again. We always say we can extend our sympathy and that we know how they feel, but we don't really. From now on I think I will pray every day for those sons and mothers. It's something I'll never forget."

Komarov Gets Hero's Burial In Red Square

Soyuz 1 Revealed To Have Flown Unmanned Before

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union gave a hero's burial in Red Square to cosmonaut Vladimir M. Komarov today and disclosed that his new Soyuz 1 spaceship had been flown before without a man on board.

Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said in a funeral oration before 5,000 mourners that Komarov took up the Soyuz 1 last Sunday "following its unmanned flights." The spacecraft crashed Monday.

Keldysh made only this passing reference and gave no other details. It was the first time that Soviet authorities revealed a spaceship had been tried out without a man on board before a manned flight was risked.

The earlier flights of the Soyuz 1 were not reported. It was possible that they were disguised as part of the Cosmos series of unmanned earth satellites. A report from abroad said one of the recent Cosmos flights had been brought back to earth.

Keldysh's words tended to discount speculation that the Soyuz had never been tested before and had developed unexpected trouble in trying to land.

Komarov's ashes were to be placed in the red brick Kremlin wall.

As the chimes of the Kremlin tower struck 3 p.m., Russia's leaders and its plain citizens gathered in the huge square to pay their last respects to Komarov.

Top Soviet leaders present included Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Komarov's weeping widow, Valentina, was supported by two women as she walked behind the urn containing her husband's ashes. The flower-bedded urn rested on a platform drawn by an armored car.

Behind the widow came Komarov's fellow cosmonauts and then Soviet leaders.

Some 5,000 ordinary Russians filled the square. Many carried portraits of Komarov draped in black.

Senate Viet Debate Is Bitterly Renewed

Army Keeps Tight Rein On Greece

Most Democratic Rights Are Still Under Suspension

ATHENS (AP)—Troops were withdrawn from most parts of Athens today as calm prevailed throughout Greece, but the new military government kept the country under tight rein.

The new rulers are acting under a 55-year-old siege law that strips the people of most of the guarantees normal to a democracy.

The law provides for: — Arrest of anyone without a warrant and indefinite detention awaiting trial;

— No bail for political prisoners;

— Bans on gatherings of more than five persons, labor unions and all strikes;

— Censorship of press, radio letters and all other communications.

The law was bolstered by an army order giving military authorities the right to search private homes; requiring all hunting rifles, shotguns and ammunition to be turned in to the nearest police station; canceling all hunting licenses and forbidding all hunting, and requiring heads of households to report all persons living with them and any visitors or foreigners.

The government announced, however, that it has set up a special office to receive complaints against the new regime. The announcement said that if a grievance is not satisfied within 48 hours, the complainant can take his case to the Interior Ministry.

There still was no word when King Constantine would make his promised speech supporting the new government installed after the army coup last Friday. The government insists that the 26-year-old monarch supports the coup and would prove it by addressing the nation and presiding over a Cabinet meeting this week.

Constantine has kept silent and out of sight. Informants said he is spending most of his time at the Tatol summer palace outside Athens with his wife, Queen Anne-Marie and their infant daughter, Alexia.

In an obvious move to win support of the rural population, Premier Constantine Kollas announced that farmers' pensions would be increased by 70 per cent by the end of the year.

In Washington, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference the U.S. government is reviewing its military and economic aid for Greece.

"No basic decision has been made," said McCloskey.

Most of the aid is military. In 1966, economic aid was $6.8 million and military aid $78.7 million.

Hamilton School Evacuated Twice In Bomb Scare

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Hamilton's Harding Junior High School was evacuated twice today—once because of a telephone bomb threat and again when a general fire alarm was sounded after a teacher heard a buzzing sound in a locker.

The buzzing sound came from two black boxes and, after they had been carried out, it was found they only contained two transistorized walkie-talkies.

The first evacuation came after Mrs. Lester L. Dickey, wife of the superintendent of schools, received a bomb threat phone call.

When a search failed to turn up any explosives, pupils were allowed to continue classes.

Then came the incident when the teacher heard the buzzing sound.

Classes again were resumed when it was determined what the boxes contained.

Police Continue Explosion Probe

An investigation of all available details on the April 15 bomb explosion at Bingham Drug Store is still in progress, according to a report today by Police Chief Robert Temple.

Chief Temple said the probe will continue until police and other authorities are satisfied all information they compile is true and confirmed. "There are too many unfounded rumors circulating concerning events that surrounded the bombing, both before and after," he declared.

The chief said an intensive investigation will be pursued in order to quell these rumors. He said an effort will be made to determine "why" the disaster occurred.

According to Temple, Lee Holbrook would have been identified as the bomb carrier even if witnesses had not seen him. "It was just fate that officers, who were on their way to pick the man up, missed him by a few minutes," the chief said.

PATROLMAN Jack Mills was one of the first at the bomb scene. He had been searching for Holbrook prior to the devastating blast.

As it turned out, Patrolman Mills was able to help save at least six persons in the store. He said he wasn't surprised when he heard the blast, and had a good idea what was behind it.

Chief Temple noted that many people probably would like to forget the episode as a painful memory. But the tragedy illustrates that Circleville is vulnerable to criminal action just like

King Will Visit 3 Negro Schools

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. planned to visit three schools in the city's East Negro areas today, then meet with Negro leaders to learn what must be done to solve the problems of "poverty and degradation."

King arrived Tuesday and said at Cleveland Hopkins Airport that he would "lend whatever assistance I can" toward solving the city's racial problems.

He was to visit Glenville and East Technical high schools and Addison Junior High before making a speech tonight at Olivet Institutional Baptist Church.

Svetlana Already Thinks Of Sequel to Her Memoirs

NEW YORK (AP) — Svetlana Alliluyeva reportedly is considering writing a sequel to her soon-to-be-published memoirs describing her life in the Soviet Union after the death of Stalin, her father.

She has told friends the book might center on the disillusionment she and other Russian liberals experienced when curbs on free expression were not lifted following the dictator's death.

Her first book, to be published by Harper & Row Oct. 16, ends with her father's death and deals with her childhood, family life and gradual estrangement from Stalin.

When she arrived here from Switzerland last Friday, she explained in a statement she had come "to seek the self-expression that has been denied me so long in Russia."

Today Mrs. Alliluyeva will hold a news conference at which she is expected to enrage on that statement and detail her future plans. It will be televised and broadcast live before a major networks beginning at 2 p. m. EST.

Reporters were asked to submit their questions in writing in advance for the scheduled one-hour session at the Plaza Hotel. On her arrival, Mrs. Alliluyeva greeted newsmen at Kennedy airport warmly but declined to answer questions. Her written statement said she had grown disillusioned with communism with age and experience. Moreover, Mrs. Alliluyeva, 42, declared, "I found that it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart. That was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance form."

She said she had left Moscow for New Delhi last December to scatter the ashes of the Indian she considered her third husband on the waters of the Ganges.

It was in India she decided to defect and applied for help to the U.S. Embassy. Though Washington officials feared her act might embitter Soviet-American relations, permission was given the embassy to do all possible.

She was flown first to Rome and then to Switzerland where she hid for six weeks. During that time, the State Department made a copy of her book available to George Kennan, onetime U. S. ambassador to Moscow, who made arrangements for its publication.

Since her arrival here she has been in seclusion at the Long Island estate of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Johnson, parents of Russian expert Priscilla Johnson Macmillan who is translating Mrs. Alliluyeva's memoirs.

Westmoreland Appearance Ignites Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has erupted into bitter, renewed debate of the Vietnam war with Gen. William C. Westmoreland's forthcoming address to Congress providing the spark.

Senate critics of U.S. policy charged Tuesday that Westmoreland, American military commander in Vietnam, was being used as a propaganda tool by the Johnson administration. Barbers of administration policy said the debate itself feeds North Vietnamese hopes for final victory.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, disputed in an interview today contentions that President Johnson is using Westmoreland's current visit home to silence dissent to war policies.

Russell said Westmoreland, scheduled to address a joint meeting of Congress and to brief governors at the White House Friday, is giving a "well-reasoned assessment" of the war situation.

Westmoreland told the annual meeting of The Associated Press in New York Monday that he sees no end to the war except by exerting maximum military pressure to grind the enemy down. He said U.S. fighting men are "dismayed" by "unpatriotic acts" of dissent at home that give the Communists hope they can win politically what they can't by force.

"You can't please some people," Russell said. "If the President brings the general home to report on the war, that's propaganda in their minds. If he doesn't bring him home, there's a credibility gap."

"I know of no one better qualified to tell the American people what's happening in Vietnam. I think Gen. Westmoreland is giving a well-reasoned assessment of the situation."

Replying to a suggestion in the Senate Tuesday by Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, that Westmoreland will call for 100,000 more American troops in Vietnam, Russell said he expects some increase in troop strength but declined to be more specific.

"The North Vietnamese are committing increasing numbers of their regular troops to the war," he said. "As long as they continue to do that and until their ability to do that is destroyed, we will need more troops."

Led by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., critics coupled fresh attacks on Johnson's policies with suggestions the President had brought Westmoreland home to flatten dissent to his course.

The critics saw ominous signs that Communist China and the Soviet Union may be brought together to react against stepped-up military pressure.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, complained that Westmoreland's indictment of war critics was meant "to shut up" dissenters.

"This criticism of dissent will then lead to charges of disloyalty and then to muddled-headedness and then to treason," Fulbright told his colleagues.

He forecast a drive for vastly increased manpower in an effort to win a military victory in Vietnam and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., agreed this could lead to World War III.

"As surely as we are standing here," the Soviet Union, the Chinese Communists and North Vietnam will have to react to what we have done by acting themselves," Kennedy said of this week's U.S. air strikes against jet fighter bases in North Vietnam.

One Survivor In Air Force Plane Crash

NANTUCKET, Mass., (AP) — A U.S. Air Force plane loaded with sophisticated radar gear crashed into the Atlantic Ocean like "a ball of fire" Tuesday night. There was only one known survivor among the 16-member crew.

The pilot, Col. James P. Lyle, 47, was credited with ditching the four-engine Super Constellation in a heroic effort to avoid the seepy island village of Nantucket.

Lyle, who has 47 combat missions on his record, was one of 13 crewmen missing. Two bodies were recovered.

Rescued from the water was Lt. Joseph L. H. Guent, 29, Montreal, Que., the navigator. He was listed in fair condition.

"I am convinced that he—Lyle—was fighting desperately to get it to the water and avoid this summer colony," said Albert L. Manning, one of three experienced private pilots who agreed that a last-minute maneuver kept the craft from striking the island.

The plane left Otis Air Force Base at Falmouth on Cape Cod at 6:50 p. m. and crashed in flames 10 minutes later 1 1/4 miles south of Nantucket, an island just off the coast of Massachusetts.

The piston-powered craft was one of several the Air Force uses as "pickets," flying race track patterns in 12-hour shifts over an area extending over the Atlantic from the Canadian border.

An eight-man investigating board headed by Col. Albert Evans commander of the 21st Air Division, McGuire AFB, N.J., was appointed to probe the crash, third of such a craft within the past two years.

Skies were clear and visibility almost unlimited this morning as search boats, planes and helicopters swarmed over the area.

All that could be seen, however, was a large oil slick, a half mile square. There was no sign of survivors or debris.

Lyle was commander of the 551st Airborne Early Warning and Control Wing at Otis in nearby Falmouth.

Rene A. Orleans, one of the private pilots who witnessed the crash, said he had "never seen anything like it. It skidded along the water for about 4,000 feet and when it hit there was this huge burst of fire and a big red fireball."

Carol Balthaser On Honor List

Miss Carol Balthaser, student at Bliss Business College in Columbus, has been named to the dean's list for the winter quarter with an average grade of 3.8. Miss Balthaser is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Balthaser of Route 2, Ashville. She is a graduate of Teays Valley High School.

money these days", Kreisel says. He noted that with present tax real estate values, rates, insurance, interest rates, machinery, fertilizer, seed and feed costs it is difficult to make a favorable profit farming.

THE NONAGENARIAN lives on the 604-acre farm which now belongs to his son, Charles and daughter, Mary Jane Hatten. When Kreisel moved to the farm 53 years ago, he kept 26 head of horses to provide power for the field work at the farm.

George Betts, present tenant, farms it using three large tractors. Kreisel employed two hired hands regularly and added a third to his work force during the busy seasons.

Betts has one laborer to help with the work. Kreisel is vitally interested in politics, both past and present.

Never hesitant about voicing his opinions, he feels that a government "cannot spend itself into prosperity." And that philosophy has guided his personal economic outlook to a great extent.

"You have to save a little if you are going to get ahead," he notes. He does not believe in going deeply in debt.

A member of the Circleville BPO Elks Lodge, Kreisel still finds time to attend an occasional function at the club.

And he still enjoys reasonably good health.

Mart Makes 10th Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading was heavy as the stock market churned onward to its tenth straight daily advance early this afternoon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 3-to-2 as profit taking trimmed the best early advance.

Rising auto sales, higher earnings for oil companies and can manufacturers and less-than-expected declines in profits for major steelmakers were among bullish factors mentioned by analysts.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.62 points at 892.82, trimming its best morning gain of 2.56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .8 at 326.0 with industrials up 1.6, rails up .1 and utilities up .2.

Bill Offered For Control Of Obscenity

Congressman William H. Harsha Ohio 6th District, announced today that he has introduced legislation designed to attack the growing problem of obscenity in the United States.

This legislation is of major importance in protecting the American postal patron from unsolicited morally offensive mail matter. Similar legislation passed the House of Representatives by overwhelming votes during the 88th and 89th Congresses but died in the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Harsha stated: "My bill will give a person receiving mail addressed to him or his children which in his opinion is obscene, lewd, lascivious, indecent, filthy or vile, the right to return such mail to the Postmaster General and request him to notify the sender not to send any mail to him or his child except mail which he has solicited. The Postmaster General would give the sender notice of this request and inform him that after 30 days from receipt of the notice he should not send any mail to the recipient unless it is solicited."

"The procedure provides for a second notice with opportunity to reply and then if the sender continues to mail offensive matter to the patron the Postmaster General can request the Attorney General to apply to a Federal court to order the sender to comply with the Postmaster's directive. Failure to obey to Court order could lead to punishment in the form of contempt of court."

The Ohio lawmaker said, "Traffic in obscene materials is a matter of grave national concern and this legislation will give every person, particularly a parent, served by the U. S. mail, an effective and urgently needed means to prevent forced entry into his home, or into the hands of his children, of mail matter which is obscene."

LBJ, Kiesinger Hold Second Talk

BONN, Germany (AP) — President Johnson said today he and West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger agreed they would have "constant, complete and full consultations" before either of their governments takes decisions on matters of interest to both countries.

The President spoke to newsmen after his second meeting with the West German chancellor since his arrival Sunday for the funeral of former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Johnson said he and Kiesinger had taken "no hard and fast decisions" but he hoped there would be more to announce after the chancellor visits the United States "at an early date."

The two men spent more than two hours together at Kiesinger's residence. The President said they discussed:

1. The projected treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons;
2. Trade and monetary problems;
3. Troop deployment;
4. The security of the two nations;
5. The prosperity of their peoples.

After the discussions with Kiesinger, Johnson took off by plane for Washington accompanied by Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson met with Swedish Prime Minister Tae Erlander, presumably to discuss Britain's plans to apply for Common Market membership. Both Britain and Sweden are members of the rival European Free Trade Association.

The funeral for Adenauer, who died last Wednesday at the age of 91, gave Western leaders a chance to discuss questions of mutual interest.

Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Wilson and Kiesinger held meetings Tuesday to talk about unity within the Western Alliance. DeGaulle flew back to Paris Tuesday night.

It was Johnson's first meeting with De Gaulle since President John F. Kennedy's funeral in November 1963. Aides reported that they said little beyond expression hope they would meet again.

Later in the day Johnson saw Premier Aldo Moro of Italy who, like the Germans, has misgivings about the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Both nations fear it will hamper their development of nuclear energy for industrial purposes.

PCCAO Director Granted Pay Hike by Committee

During Tuesday night's meeting of the Pickaway County Community Action Organization Mrs. Gloria Pike, administrator and coordinator was granted a pay hike of $50 per month by the ruling executive committee.

A motion to increase the present salary of $6,400 per year was not opposed. It boosts the pay to $7,000 a year, with allowances for mileage based on a 40-plus hour week.

The assembly covered old business and instituted motions to investigate new programs to get PCCAO on the move in Pickaway County. Members felt that more programs should be investigated.

Mrs. Beatrice Oliver, director of the newly-approved Head Start Summer session gave an outline on future plans. A report was also given on recruitment for the summer session.

It was disclosed during the meeting that 26 applications were being screened for teaching positions in educational sessions of Head Start. Bomb Damages Home of Federal Judge's Mother

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — An explosion, apparently caused by a bomb, has damaged the home of the mother of a federal judge who has handed down several school integration decisions, including one calling for desegregation of all Alabama schools this fall.

No injuries were reported. The blast occurred Tuesday night beneath a kitchen window at the home of Mrs. Frank Johnson Sr. in the southern part of Montgomery. She is the widowed mother of U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr.

Fire Chief W.T. Mallory said the blast appeared to have been caused by a bomb either thrown against the building or planted there. The explosion tore loose shrapnel, shattered windows and dug a hole in the ground about two feet in diameter.

The judge was a member of the three-judge panel which last month ordered all Alabama schools integrated by September.

J.M. Miller, who lives next door, said the explosion shattered two windows and blew a lighting fixture from the ceiling which narrowly missed his wife and baby daughter.

One Survivor In Air Force Plane Crash

NANTUCKET, Mass., (AP) — A U.S. Air Force plane loaded with sophisticated radar gear crashed into the Atlantic Ocean like "a ball of fire" Tuesday night. There was only one known survivor among the 16-member crew.

The pilot, Col. James P. Lyle, 47, was credited with ditching the four-engine Superconstellation in a heroic effort to avoid the seepy island village of Nantucket.

Lyle, who has 47 combat missions on his record, was one of 13 crewmen missing. Two bodies were recovered.

Rescued from the water was Lt. Joseph L. H. Guenet, 29, Montreal, Que., the navigator. He was listed in fair condition.

"I am convinced that he—Lyle—was fighting desperately to get it to the water and avoid this summer colony," said Albert L. Manning, one of three experienced private pilots who agreed that a last-minute maneuver kept the craft from striking the island.

The plane left Otis Air Force Base at Falmouth on Cape Cod at 6:50 p. m. and crashed in flames 10 minutes later 14 miles south of Nantucket, an island just off the coast of Massachusetts.

The piston-powered craft was one of several the Air Force uses as "pickets," flying race track patterns in 12-hour shifts over an area extending over the Atlantic from the Canadian border.

An eight-man investigating board headed by Col. Albert Evans commander of the 21st Air Division, McGuire AFB, N.J., was appointed to probe the crash, third of such a craft within the past two years.

Skies were clear and visibility almost unlimited this morning as search boats, planes and helicopters swarmed over the area.

All that could be seen, however, was a large oil slick, a half mile square. There was no sign of survivors or debris.

Lyle was commander of the 551st Airborne Early Warning and Control Wing at Otis in nearby Falmouth.

Rene A. Orleans, one of the private pilots who witnessed the crash, said he had "never seen anything like it. It skidded along the water for about 4,000 feet and when it hit there was this huge burst of fire and a big red fireball."

money these days", Kreisel says. He noted that with present tax real estate values, rates, insurance, interest rates, machinery, fertilizer, seed and feed costs it is difficult to make a favorable profit farming.

THE NONAGENARIAN lives on the 604-acre farm which now belongs to his son, Charles and daughter, Mary Jane Hatten. When Kreisel moved to the farm 53 years ago, he kept 26 head of horses to provide power for the field work at the farm.

George Betts, present tenant, farms it using three large tractors. Kreisel employed two hired hands regularly and added a third to his work force during the busy seasons.

Betts has one laborer to help with the work. Kreisel is vitally interested in politics, both past and present.

Never hesitant about voicing his opinions, he feels that a government "cannot spend itself into prosperity." And that philosophy has guided his personal economic outlook to a great extent.

"You have to save a little if you are going to get ahead," he notes. He does not believe in going deeply in debt.

A member of the Circleville BPO Elks Lodge, Kreisel still finds time to attend an occasional function at the club.

And he still enjoys reasonably good health.

Mart Makes 10th Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading was heavy as the stock market churned onward to its tenth straight daily advance early this afternoon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 3-to-2 as profit taking trimmed the best early advance.

Rising auto sales, higher earnings for oil companies and can manufacturers and less-than-expected declines in profits for major steelmakers were among bullish factors mentioned by analysts.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.62 points at 892.82, trimming its best morning gain of 2.56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .8 at 326.0 with industrials up 1.6, rails up .1 and utilities up .2.

New Savings Bond Plan Is Offered

The nation's millions of regular Savings Bond buyers are being offered a "bonus" by the Treasury Department in the form of "Freedom Shares" which will go on sale May 1, according to Kenneth F. Fausnaugh Chairman of the Pickaway County Savings Bond Committee.

The new security will yield an annual average return of 4.74 per cent when held to maturity of 4½ years, the Chairman said. Offered in denominations of $25, $50, $75, and $100, the notes can be bought only in conjunction with Series E Bonds, and only to the extent that bonds are purchased on a regular plan.

"This means," Fausnaugh said, "that for every $5 E Bond you buy on a regular plan, you can also buy a $25 Freedom Share up to a limit of $1,550 in one calendar year, based on the face value of the shares. You can buy more bonds than Freedom Shares, of course, but not the other way around."

The cost of the new security is $20.25 for each $25 face value. This compares with the $18.75 cost of a Series E Bond. The difference is due to the fact that the Freedom Shares mature in 4½ years, while E Bonds must be held 7 years to reach their $25 face value.

Two basic plans are available for the combined purchase of Series E Bonds and Freedom Shares. One is through the Payroll Savings Plan offered by business firms to employees. The other is the Bond-A-Month Plan available at many banks, whereby the cost is deducted monthly from a checking account.

One of the proposed programs studied was the Aid for the Elderly. Members motioned that the idea be analyzed for possible application in Pickaway County.

The second, and perhaps the most well-received proposal was the establishment of a Youth Training and Job Corps, such as found in the larger cities. The program, if adopted, will aid juveniles who are potential high school drop-outs, presently in school, and juveniles who have already quit their educational goals.

Mrs. Pike said the Corps would provide needed industrial and vocational training for the otherwise "drifters-to-be".

Many at the meeting felt that the Youth Corps was a critical issue and that it was a program that should be given the full attention and support of the community.

The short-hour long meeting was fast-moving and decisive in viewing future goals and present administration of efforts at Lowery Lane and the Neighborhood Center.

About 40 persons attended the meeting to voice their opinions and views about PCCAO and its proposed programs. Public interest became evident by attendance and participation.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a mad and boisterous scene in the old, old drama of gold and what the United States should do about it since international trade depended upon it. Essentially it was a comedy.

The United States pegs the price of gold at $35 an ounce and thereby gives a stable base from which the relative value of currencies can be judged.

Because the United States is running low on gold these days, it was suggested this month that we might consider withdrawing this pledge. Eyebrows rose, and world bankers froze. The emotion rose too.

Innocent statements were delivered into explosive contexts. Casual remarks became meaningful innuendoes, denial convincing affirmations. For a time it looked like a complex plot.

The nation's two largest banks started it all. They brought up the touchy subject of what the United States should do in the event it could not give gold in exchange for dollars. Gold is in much shorter supply than the potential demand for it. On April 4 the Chase Manhattan, second largest, suggested that the United States would, in a crisis, consider terminating the privilege given foreign central banks of trading their dollars for gold.

Two days later Rudolph Peterson, of the Bank of America expressed similar thoughts in a speech here. His bank, based in San Francisco, is the largest.

Now, when the two largest commercial banks in the nation touch on the same subject two days apart, anyone is entitled to believe in a plot. Much of Europe did so believe. This, they thought, was a trial balloon.

After all, hadn't Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler mentioned something similar in conversations at Pebble Beach, Calif., only a few weeks earlier. And weren't representatives of both banks there?

Chase felt compelled to issue a clarifying statement, ordinarily a welcome move. In the context, however, it probably provoked further speculation. Was American policy changing? Interest and confusion were being compounded daily.

Meanwhile, it appears, Washington officials themselves were trying to find out how it all started. Judging from comments, some bureaucrats were not quite sure it wasn't a balloon and so felt they had better know.

The Daughters of the American Revolution also were revolted by the very idea of not maintaining the price of gold, and so they passed a resolution, unanimously, expressing alarm.

By this time less and less was being heard from the horrified early participants.

But now Washington seemed to be recovering. It said Chase and Bank of America had been speaking on their own; their statements weren't trial balloons; they didn't originate in Washington.

And so, it seems, it wasn't a balloon at all but just hot air rising, enough hot air, reassuringly, to float a balloon almost anytime at all.

Double Talk Saves Society

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring is a good time to start brushing up on the double talk you'll need in the long hot summer ahead.

Double talk, of course, changes as the seasons do. You would no more use last winter's double talk in August than you would wear a heavy overcoat to a picnic.

What is double talk? It is the safety valve of civilized conversation. It is the art of saying something that is socially acceptable while your own mind keeps its inner sanity by thinking what you'd really like to say. It is a form of necessary and enlightened hypocrisy.

Here, for example, are a few typical samples of double talk you may find useful in the coming months — followed by their literal translations.

"I just love hot weather, don't you?" — Our air-conditioner has broken down again.

"It's so balmy out, I really wouldn't mind walking." — But if you don't hail us a cab, Buster, you're the one who's balmy.

"You look so cool in your new short haircut, Myrtle." — It looks like it had been gnawed off by a dog with a broken tooth.

"No, of course, I don't think that new bikini is a bit too daring. After all, dear, with a shape like yours what is there to hide?" — But you'd attract even more attention at the beach if you wore sandwich boards advertising the circus.

"Darling, have you and your husband really made up your minds to go to the mountains?" — Because, if you have, my husband and I are definitely going to the seashore.

"Mind if I join you fellows to usually go around the course with couldn't make it today." — Ever since they caught me lying about my score, I've been playing alone.

"This year we've decided just to stay at home. It's really so much more restful." — All my husband's credit cards have been canceled, and the bank refused us a loan.

"Just take off your shoes and make yourselves at home. Here in the country, naturally, we like to live as informally as possible." — But next year we do plan to put in an indoor bathroom.

"I can't tell you how much fun we had staying with you." — But it doesn't nearly come up to the sheer ecstasy of leaving.

"Come back anytime. The latchstring is always out. Remember, we don't think of you as guests." — Parasites.

Dear Editor: During many meetings and conversations during the past year as president of the local Chamber of Commerce, the necessity for a strong local school program became more apparent to me than ever before.

One of the first comments made by a representative from the State Department of Development at a recent meeting of our Chamber of Commerce Area Development Committee was that Circleville was being recognized as a community not willing to financially support the operation of its school system. Although we have fine new buildings with teachers and administration that have operated on a budget that was recognized as being one of the lowest in the state, we have not seen fit to keep pace with the demands of the increased cost of living and of operating these facilities.

Our local school board must certainly be commended for operating the school system in the manner in which they have. However, we cannot continue to attract the caliber of teachers or to hold the teachers that we have unless we can compensate them fairly for their services. Even those who have an interest and their roots in Circleville cannot continue to teach here at a sacrifice to themselves and their families.

One of the criticisms of our tax system has been that we must send funds to Washington D. C. and then have them come back to us here in our local community. Again, we must face the fact that if we do not provide these funds and spend them at our local level, the federal government, recognizing our deficiencies, will collect these taxes and return only a portion of them to us on the local level.

I would urge you all to support this 3.5 levy in order that we may do our part on the local level to provide operating funds in our school system and to keep Circleville an attractive area for industry, business and prospective citizens.

ONE YOUNG WASTREL who literally had money to burn was James Gordon Bennett, owner of the then fabulously successful New York Herald. Bennett, calling on a young debutante, squirmed uncomfortably on a chaise longue for a full half-hour, then impatiently extracted a huge wad of banknotes from his back pants pocket and threw it into the fire. "How," he demanded angrily, "can a man court a girl with a thing like that destroying his comfort?"

Truman Capote, author of the all-conquering "In Cold Blood," has found what he calls the perfect title for the new novel on which he's currently embarked. He's calling it "Answered Prayers." This comes from Saint Theresa, who said that more tears are shed over answered prayers than unanswered ones.

7 Students Hurt By Rifle Fire

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Seven students demonstrating on the campus of Southern University suffered superficial wounds Tuesday when struck by ricocheting 30-30-caliber rifle bullets and flying bits of asphalt pavement.

The Easton Baton Rouge Parish sheriff's office took a Negro night watchman into custody after the 8 a.m. shooting. An official of the sheriff's office quoted the watchman, James G. Jones, as saying:

"I didn't mean to shoot anybody. I was just trying to scare them."

Three shots were fired downward into asphalt. The students were wounded by fragmenting bullets and asphalt.

Use The Classifieds

Two Directions

The young in this country are supposed to be going in two different directions. There are the conservatives who belong to Young Americans for Freedom. And there are the radicals who flock into Students for a Democratic Society.

Actually, the young conservatives and the young radicals happen in many instances to be marching to the beat of the same drummer. There are libertarians in both camps who fear the compulsions that seem an inevitable part of a mass society. They dislike big organizations, snooping government, the depersonalized teaching in big universities. And, above all, they agree on disliking compulsory military service.

So what we are seeing is a strange tendency of the Right and the Left to get together in new united fronts. In Chicago, where conservative economics teachers such as Professor Milton Friedman and Professor Yale Brozen hold forth on the virtues of the free market, they are forming a society of Rightist and Leftist youths to explore the possibilities of moving away from a draft army to a professional army composed entirely of volunteers.

The other night, as a guest at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Young Americans for Freedom held at the University of Bridgeport, I listened to a number of hawkish speeches on Vietnam. But, surprisingly, the feeling against the compulsory military draft came to the fore in both the speeches and in the questions that followed them. A visitor from the Rhode Island chapter of Young Americans for Freedom spoke of the right to volunteer as a precious right that should not be smothered by the necessity of having to appear before draft boards and carry draft cards. He told an appreciative audience about the number of former Rhodes Island YAF members who were now in Vietnam after freely enlisting in the armed services.

The expense of maintaining a professional army might, at first blush, seem prohibitive. But Professor Friedman was quoted at length at the Bridgeport YAF meeting to prove that 500,000 well-paid professionals would actually be cheaper to maintain the field than an equal number of draftees. To begin with, professionals might be expected to enlist for twenty years, providing an army that is constant in its fighting know-how. The smaller turnover in professionals would mean that a good deal of money could be saved on the training of recruits.

Moreover, fewer good military men would have to be detailed as instructors in training camps. On the civilian side, the country would gain in productivity as young people with an aptitude for civilian jobs got a two-year jump in the careers to which they would normally be expected to devote their lives.

For hawks, the Young Americans for Freedom are surprisingly tender toward sincere pacifists. James Jay Ferris, writing in a mimeographed YAF magazine called "Renascence," says: "Permit me to make what may perhaps be a heroic assumption, that pacifists are rational." The moral imperative of the pacifist, he continues, "is not to be a party to, nor directly involved in the initiation of physical violence against others." But Mr. Ferris goes on to say that "men who initiate the use of physical violence must be constrained, by physical violence if necessary, to take any other position is to invite self-destruction of any and all life appropriate to human beings." With this view of pacifism, it is not surprising that a majority in Young Americans for Freedom support the U. S. position in Vietnam. Ho Chi Minh and the Vietcong have obviously "initiated" physical violence against the South Vietnamese. But to hold that Ho Chi Minh is the initiator of the Vietnamese conflict does not necessarily mean to YAF that sincere pacifists should be conscripted to fight a small-scale war.

To me, it seems doubtful that the draft will be abolished as long as the U.S. is involved in an active struggle in Southeast Asia. But if and when the war ends, it will be most interesting to see how far a united front between young Rightists and young Leftists will go. The libertarian note that dominates much of the thinking in both camps is not compatible with Big Government collectivism. The Communists may be in for quite a surprise after the war when they try to maintain liaison with the young doves whom they now seem to be manipulating for their own collectivist ends.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Why do some people have to urinate so much more frequently than others?

People in good health do not usually have too great or too frequent a desire to urinate. Infections of the bladder, excess intake of fluids, drugs and nervousness are only a few of the reasons why both men and women have an urge to frequent urination.

There are some major conditions like kidney disease and the two forms of diabetes in which an unusual amount of urine is passed out of the body daily. There are other disorders in the male and female urinary tract which may be a responsible cause.

If the urge to urinate is no greater than four times a day and is not accompanied by burning or a feeling of incomplete voiding there need be no concern. If the urge is more frequent than that it is not too difficult to find the exact cause and eliminate it.

When the uterus is out of position it can interfere with the possibility of pregnancy or do other damage?

It is not unusual for women to have some displacement of the uterus either forwards or backwards. The normal position of the largest part of the uterus tends to bend forward and by this position invites normal pregnancy.

A retroverted uterus bends backwards and may interfere with conception in some people. Women sometimes complain of a feeling of heaviness and backache if the change in the position is very marked, but otherwise it does little or no damage.

If by its position it presses on the lower bowel there may be some constipation. Women who have had a number of childbirths may have stretched the tissues and ligaments that hold the uterus, or womb, in suspension.

If there are any uncomfortable symptoms, gynecologists, specialists in women's diseases, have many methods by which they can correct the disorder. Exercises, pessaries and surgery are all used when necessary in carefully selected cases.

What can cause a narrowing of the esophagus that prevents food from going to the stomach? Can this be repaired?

The esophagus can be narrowed by infections, injury and tumors, both benign and malignant. Accidental swallowing of lye has for years been a cause for this condition. A small pouch, or diverticulum, may interfere with food going down, but does not completely block it.

When once the exact diagnosis is made by X-ray with barium the treatment can be started. Sometimes the esophagus, especially in lye poisoning, can be opened and stretched with metal tubes.

When the esophagus is removed because of a cancerous condition a series of brilliant operations can now actually form another esophagus using a portion of the stomach to replace it.

Astonishing advances have been made in surgery for cases which once seemed hopeless.

Additional years of life are most welcome to the elderly. During these years they want one important thing, the feeling that they are wanted and loved. Also, that they still belong to society and are respected.

GERHARDT FOR MAYOR

CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO

April 23, 1967

Dear Mr. Clifton:

It is my belief that the citizens of Circleville who will be voting in the Democratic primary next week will be able to make a better choice if you and I were to openly confront them with our ideas.

Therefore, I am challenging you to join with me in a public debate of the issues which will face the next Mayor.

I am sure you will agree that through the process the citizens of our city will be able to select the best.

By BENNETT CERF

ONE YOUNG WASTREL who literally had money to burn was James Gordon Bennett, owner of the fabulously successful New York Herald. Bennett, calling on a young debutante, squirmed uncomfortably on a chaise longue for a full half-hour, then impetuously extracted a huge wad of banknotes from his back pants pocket and threw it into the fire. "How," he demanded angrily, "can a man court a girl with a thing like that destroying his comfort?"

Truman Capote, author of the all-conquering "In Cold Blood," has found what he calls the perfect title for the new novel on which he's currently embarked. He's calling it "Answered Prayers." This comes from Saint Theresa, who said that more tears are shed over answered prayers than unanswered ones.

They're cooking up a new ending for that often-revived film "epic," "King Kong." In the 1967 version the giant beast evades all his human pursuers and gets to the top of the Empire State Building untouched. But do you know what tells him there? The SMOG!

Epitaph for a hypochondriac: "I told you I was sick." For a writer of etiquette books: "Please excuse me for not rising."

its fighting know-how. The smaller turnover in professionals would mean that a good deal of money could be saved on the training of recruits.

Moreover, fewer good military men would have to be detailed as instructors in training camps. On the civilian side, the country would gain in productivity as young people with an aptitude for civilian jobs got a two-year jump in the careers to which they would normally be expected to devote their lives.

For hawks, the Young Americans for Freedom are surprisingly tender toward sincere pacifists. James Jay Ferris, writing in a mimeographed YAF magazine called "Renascence," says: "Permit me to make what may perhaps be a heroic assumption, that pacifists are rational." The moral imperative of the pacifist, he continues, "is not to be a party to, nor directly involved in the initiation of physical violence against others."

But Mr. Ferris goes on to say that "men who initiate the use of physical violence must be constrained, by physical violence if necessary, to take any other position is to invite self-destruction of any and all life appropriate to human beings." With this view of pacifism, it is not surprising that a majority in Young Americans for Freedom support the U. S. position in Vietnam. Ho Chi Minh and the Vietcong have obviously

"initiated" physical violence against the South Vietnamese. But to hold that Ho Chi Minh is the initiator of the Vietnamese conflict does not necessarily mean to YAF that sincere pacifists should be conscripted to fight a small-scale war.

To me, it seems doubtful that the draft will be abolished as long as the U.S. is involved in an active struggle in Southeast Asia. But if and when the war ends, it will be most interesting to see how far a united front between young Rightists and young Leftists will go. The libertarian note that dominates much of the thinking in both camps is not compatible with Big Government collectivism. The Communists may be in for quite a surprise after the war when they try to maintain liaison with the young doves whom they now seem to be manipulating for their own collectivist ends.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

Why do some people have to urinate so much more frequently than others?

People in good health do not usually have too great or too frequent a desire to urinate. Infections of the bladder, excess intake of fluids, drugs and nervousness are only a few of the reasons why both men and women have an urge to frequent urination.

There are some major conditions like kidney disease and the two forms of diabetes in which an unusual amount of urine is passed out of the body daily. There are other disorders in the male and female urinary tract which may be a responsible cause.

If the urge to urinate is no greater than four times a day and is not accompanied by burning or a feeling of incompleteness there need be no concern. If the urge is more frequent than that it is not too difficult to find the exact cause and eliminate it.

When the uterus is out of position it can interfere with the possibility of pregnancy or do other damage?

It is not unusual for women to have some displacement of the uterus either forwards or backwards. The normal position of the largest part of the uterus tends to bend forward and by this position invites normal pregnancy.

A retroverted uterus bends backwards and may interfere with conception in some people. Women sometimes complain of a feeling of heaviness and backache if the change in the position is very marked, but otherwise it does little or no damage.

If by its position it presses on the lower bowel there may be some constipation. Women who have had a number of childbirths may have stretched the tissues and ligaments that hold the uterus, or womb, in suspension.

If there are any uncomfortable symptoms, gynecologists, specialists in women's diseases, have many methods by which they can correct the disorder. Exercises, pessaries and surgery are all used when necessary in carefully selected cases.

What can cause a narrowing of the esophagus that prevents food from going to the stomach? Can this be repaired?

The esophagus can be narrowed by infections, injury and tumors, both benign and malignant. Accidental swallowing of lye has for years been a cause for this condition. A small pouch, or diverticulum, may interfere with food going down, but does not completely block it.

When once the exact diagnosis is made by X-ray with barium the treatment can be started. Sometimes the esophagus, especially in lye poisoning, can be opened and stretched with metal tubes.

When the esophagus is removed because of a cancerous condition a series of brilliant operations can now actually form another esophagus using a portion of the stomach to replace it.

Astonishing advances have been made in surgery for cases which once seemed hopeless.

Additional years of life are most welcome to the elderly. During these years they want one important thing, the feeling that they are wanted and loved. Also, that they still belong to society and are respected.

GERHARDT FOR MAYOR

CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO

April 23, 1967

Dear Mr. Clifton:

It is my belief that the citizens of Circleville who will be voting in the Democratic primary next week will be able to make a better choice if you and I were to openly confront them with our ideas.

Therefore, I am challenging you to join with me in a public debate of the issues which will face the next Mayor.

I am sure you will agree that through the process the citizens of our city will be able to select the best.

7 Students Hurt By Rifle Fire

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Seven students demonstrating on the campus of Southern University suffered superficial wounds Tuesday when struck by ricocheting 30-30-caliber rifle bullets and flying bits of asphalt pavement.

The Easton Baton Rouge Parish sheriff's office took a Negro night watchman into custody after the 8 a.m. shooting. An official of the sheriff's office quoted the watchman, James G. Jones, as saying:

"I didn't mean to shoot anybody. I was just trying to scare them."

Three shots were fired downward into asphalt. The students were wounded by fragmenting bullets and asphalt.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is said to be very sensitive to criticism about his handling of the war in Vietnam. But his critics seem sensitive, too, to criticism about criticism.

There was a good example of it this week after Gen. William C. Westmoreland made a 51-paragraph speech on the war — enough to fill half of a newspaper page — and then answered questions that took up the rest of the page.

But in all he said the commander of the U.S. forces in Vietnam used only one paragraph, plus one sentence in another paragraph, to criticize American critics of the war.

It was this bit about the critics that the critics seized upon, skipping over the rest of the speech which Westmoreland made to the annual meeting of The Associated Press in New York.

He was accused of being a kind of messenger boy for Johnson — a propaganda agent — ordered by Johnson to say what he said.

Yet, it was a very excellent speech, full of details and background and explanations for the U.S. part in the war, the very kind of speech some people think Johnson should have made long ago to the American people, but hasn't.

Briefly, Westmoreland said

FREMONT, Ohio (AP)— An 18-month-old infant in nearby Clyde was asphyxiated Monday when a fire broke out in an upstairs bedroom where he was sleeping.

The victim was William Blankenship, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Blankenship. Police said faulty wiring under a carpet started the fire which did slight damage to the room.

chief, the President."

Westmoreland failed if, as Fulbright claimed, he was just a Johnson mouthpiece trying to silence the dissenters. As can be seen from this, instead of feeling chastened, the speech started the critics all over again.

Johnson and Westmoreland must have figured it would. In this war few seem to change their minds. Therefore, it would seem, the best Westmoreland could hope or was to make the critics self-conscious.

It seemed to do that, all right, judging from their fast reaction.

Clinton Base Gets Training Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Air National Guard units, including the 160th Air Refueling Group based at Clinton County Air Force Base, Ohio, will be used to provide air refueling training of Air Force crewmen in Europe starting next month.

Five KC97L jet-augmented tankers will be based at Rhein-Main Air Base in Germany to be flown by guardsmen on a rotational basis during their annual active duty training periods, the Pentagon said Monday. The crews will fly three air refueling sorties daily.

Truman Capote Takes Look at Garden City Filming

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP) — Truman Capote dabbed at his nose with a tissue and said in his small-boy's voice: "It's my own fault, I guess, riding all the way from Kansas City with the top down in a convertible."

The author had made the 400-mile trip to witness the filming of his nonfiction novel, "In Cold Blood," and he was suffering the consequences.

Capote was staying at the Wheat Land Motel, where he had lived during his research into the 1959 murders of the Clutter family. His feelings upon returning to Garden City were mixed.

"I spent a great deal of time here—18 months in all," he explained. "During that time I made some very good friends with people who didn't know who on earth I was. I mean they viewed with a kind of fascination this strange little nut who was interested in a rather obscure murder case."

"I like seeing my friends again, but really, what is there to do in Garden City, Kansas."

One thing was to visit the set of "In Cold Blood," and he was pleased with what he saw.

"It seemed to me like a very close-knit, smooth-running organization," he remarked. "You can usually tell when something is going to be successful; there is an undercurrent of excitement."

Though indoors, Capote was bundled up in a fleece-lined jacket with a dark-blue baseball cap atop his thinning hair. He wore dark glasses and his cherubic face was ruddy from the long drive from Kansas City.

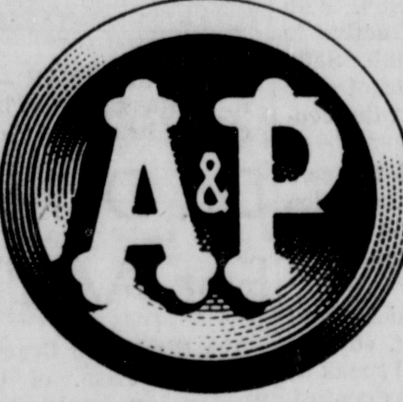

He said that the Richard Brooks script was a condensation of his book—"it had to be considered, or it would be a nine-hour movie."

Producer-director Brooks had carried out this specification, said Capote, that the movie had to be shot in black and white with unknowns.

What about John Forsythe, who plays the killers' nemesis, Alvin Dewey of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation?

"Well, John Forsythe was unknown to me," said the author with a high giggle. "So Brooks still adhered to my specification. Besides, Forsythe has an absolutely uncanny resemblance to Dewey."

this about the criticism at home: While the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are discouraged by military defeats, they are encouraged to keep on fighting by the criticism.

They interpret the criticism, he said, as "crumbling morale" in this country and popular opposition to the war. He added: The longer the enemy keeps fighting, the higher the cost in American lives.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., perhaps Johnson's most persistent critic on the war, protested that Westmoreland's criticism of the critics was part of a Johnson administration attempt to "shut up" dissenters and link dissent with treason.

Fulbright last year said he looked upon the Vietnam conflict as a civil war and "I think we are... intervening in a civil war."

But Westmoreland, with a ringside seat in Vietnam as commander there for three years, said in his speech that the war is anything but civil, that it is a boldfaced attempt by the Communist North to take over the non-Communist South.

To explain why, he went into a lot of detail which may satisfy those Americans who were puzzled about who did what to whom. But it undoubtedly won't move the critics an inch, including Fulbright.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., another war critic, started off the attack in the Senate on Westmoreland's speech with a speech of his own that called for an end to the bombing although the enemy never moved any closer to the peace table when Johnson ordered a bombing pause a number of times.

McGovern said he didn't blame Westmoreland for what he said because "he is obviously doing both in Vietnam and in New York exactly what he was told to do by his commander in chief, the President."

Westmoreland failed if, as Fulbright claimed, he was just a Johnson mouthpiece trying to silence the dissenters. As can be seen from this, instead of feeling chastened, the speech started the critics all over again.

Johnson and Westmoreland must have figured it would. In this war few seem to change their minds. Therefore, it would seem, the best Westmoreland could hope for was to make the critics self-conscious.

Missionary Crusaders Inspired Seamstresses

The Ladies Missionary Crusaders of The First Church of Christ in Christian Union are a group of dedicated, faithful workers. Each week on Tuesday they gather in the church basement and sew quilts, tear rags and make rugs, sew sheets and pillow cases and whatever else needs to be made. They work from 9:30 a. m. until 3 p. m. with a short lunch break.

Many of the ladies take work home with them for completion. It is sort of a production line system, some tear rags, another sews the strips together and another crochets them into rugs. Other ladies press pieces of material to be cut into pieces for quilts, while others put the pieces together and yet others put the lining in and finish the end seams.

One lady quilts on intricate designed quilts with small even stitches that are beautiful. This is a labor of love for these ladies and they say they are thankful for the opportunity to do it.

The Missionary Society has completed 106 sheets and pillow cases. To date they have 63 quilts made and have set Aug. as the time to have 106 completed. The bedding is slated for the boys school in Honduras, Central America.

The crocheted rugs will be sent to missionary field personnel in many countries.

Other members not present when the picture was taken are: Mrs. William Longacre, Bertha Compton, Amanda Spradlin, Geneva Seymour, Ruby Kirby, Jessie Kirby, Pollie Buskirk, Bertha Davis, Rose Peters, Mildred Moats, Denise McCain and Elizabeth Peters.

Monday Club Hears Talk About Angels

Monday Club held its regular meeting in the Lutheran Church. Following the business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Ralph Dunkel, a paper on angels was read by Mrs. Wallace Higgins.

Beginning with the early concepts of demi-gods and demons, it traced man's beliefs regarding angels through the Classical Period, when he thought that some 'intellectual substances' moved the planets by their will, to the more complex ideas of the post-Medieval thinkers who discussed not only the deeds of angels, but their nature, substance, speech, travel, hierarchies and government.

These philosophers were necessarily influenced by the rich tapestry of scriptural accounts and popular concepts of angelic beings which developed parallel to the speculations and scientific analyses of the educated thinkers. The combined art, literature music, folk-lore and philosophy developed into generally accepted beliefs that angels are immaterial and imperishable, that rather than occupy space, they contain the place at which they act, their knowledge is infused in them at their creation by God, that they are governed not by emotion and passion but by knowledge and love.

Mrs. Higgins gave accounts of appearances of angels in the Old and New Testaments and apocryphal writings. She stressed the reality of these appearances in that obviously something happens. Some event occurs which humans must find descriptions and explanations for. She closed with several contemporary accounts of angels, including those from Rufus Jones and C. S. Lewis.

The Circleville Branch of The American Assn. of University Women conducted their fifth annual Lillian Doherty Lecture Tuesday evening at Nicholas Drive Elementary School.

Dr. Dwight M. Palmer, a member of the Ohio State University Medical faculty was guest speaker. He used "Social Offenders" as his topic.

Dr. Palmer has an impressive background in neurology, psychiatry and legal medicine. An audience of more than 200 members and guests gave him talk their undivided attention. Although he spoke more than an hour, it seemed like a short time.

Mrs. Richard Fisher, president, welcomed those present and introduced Mrs. R. A. Rustin, implementation chairman of The Law and the Citizen. Mrs. Rustin, presented Dr. Palmer.

Dr. Palmer stated there are five classes of mental illness. He listed them and chose the psychopathic personality for his talk.

He stated that these people are the ones that the least has been done for, due to the fact that at present no medication or counseling can help them. He said these "social offenders" are characterized by emotional instability, lack of sound judgment, are perverse and impulsive and never learn from experience.

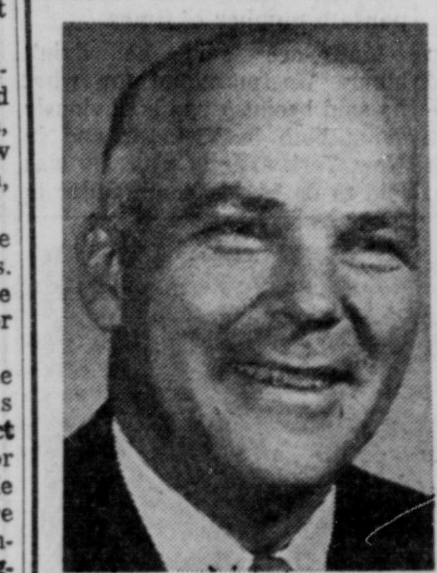

He added that these people have a moral insensibility and are lacking in a code of ethics and moral standards. "They find it difficult to make adjustments being immature and unable to accept standard codes."

In conclusion, Dr. Palmer said these people reached this condition either because they were a "chip off the old block", or the parents had set a poor standard, or a child simply rejected standards set up by society and parents.

Hostess committee members were: Ruth Hoffman, chairman; Mrs. Louise Story acted in her place because Mrs. Hoffman is in Europe; Mrs. Ned Griner, Mrs. H. Newell Stevenson, Jr., Mrs. Charles Hardin, Mrs. Otto Behrman, Mrs. Richard Funk, Mrs. Richard Gerhardt and Mrs. Merwin Odenbaugh.

Random Car Inspection Bill Tossed to Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Republican state senator has tossed a random auto inspection bill into the hotbed of controversy on highway safety in the Ohio General Assembly.

Sen. Ralph S. Regula R-29 Stark introduced the measure Tuesday.

His bill was among three introduced in the Senate. Four were offered in the lower chamber, including one that would outlaw sale of so-called "loss leader" items in dairy and other retail stores. A similar bill was defeated two years ago after arguments that major chain stores sold milk below cost to bring in customers who otherwise might buy from independent retailers.

Regula's bill would call for a system of random auto inspections advocated by the Highway Safety Department and the Ohio Highway Patrol. They oppose compulsory periodic inspections which are included in the embattled omnibus highway safety measure pending in the House.

The freshman senator said his measures would authorize officers to stop vehicles for inspection without noting visible defects as required under present law.

Under the bill, motorists caught violating existing laws against unsafe vehicle operation could be fined $50 for a first offense and $100 for a second offense within a year.

Regula said his proposal probably would require a series of inspection stations at strategic spots to provide facilities needed for checking certain mechanical equipment.

The omnibus highway safety measure, introduced in the House several weeks ago, has undergone the stormiest hearings of the session with most of the dispute centered around a system of inspection.

Bringing pressure to bear has been a provision of the Federal Highway Safety Act of 1966 which requires inspection programs by the end of this year under threat of losing federal highway funds. The act has not been fully implemented and at this point no one seems to know whether such inspections must be periodic or whether a system of random checks would meet its requirements.

Tuesday's House action was highlighted by 94-2 approval of a proposed Ohio-West Virginia air pollution control pact. It now goes to the Senate.

The pact would establish a commission of five members from each state to issue regulations and recommend control action subject to local jurisdiction and court appeal.

The Senate voted 1-0 to increase Welfare Department funeral payments for old age pensioners from $180 to $220 and boost allowable contributions by family and friends from $120 to $180. Sponsors said the bill would permit funeral expenses from both sources totaling $400 compared to a present minimum of $300.

Senators debated about 90 minutes before approving 24-8 a bill revising laws covering Ohio's building and loan associations. Generally, the bill would increase the powers of the state superintendent of building and loans and boost minimum authorized capital from $500,000 to $2 million with the superintendent given the discretion of requiring up to $10 million in authorized capital.

Debate centered around provisions requiring firms to obtain approval from the superintendent before relocating offices, giving the superintendent authority to require more than $2 million in capital, and writing a new section covering firm when penalties already are provided under existing laws.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills permitting the Ohio Youth Commission to bypass the Public Works Department in contracting for building repairs up to $10,000 and allow Ohioans age 18-20 to sue and be sued as adults for divorce, annulment and alimony.

Philadelphia Gun Law Seen As Effective

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two years ago Philadelphia restricted the sale of rifles and shotguns as a crime deterrent measure.

Police readily admit no scientific measure is possible to determine the effectiveness of the restriction, but they cite as a gauge, however, statistics which show that homicides dropped 1.2 per cent in the nation's fourth largest city in 1966 over the previous year while all serious crimes dropped 6.4 per cent. The gun law bars the sales of weapons to habitual drunks, narcotics addicts and persons convicted of violent crime.

Opponents of the ordinance, which provides a $300 fine and 90 days in jail, or both, for anyone caught possessing an unregistered rifle or shotgun, claim it is so rigid it is unenforceable.

Irv Joffe, a former Philadelphia gun dealer who moved his shop to suburban Delaware County, claims the law is violated between 65,000 and 85,000 times a year by residents who sell their weapons privately without bothering to have them registered first.

The law, which requires prospective rifle and shotgun owners to be fingerprinted and photographed by police, has put 19 gun dealers out of business in the last year, according to Joffe.

Dealers also claim the law has cost the city $3 million in taxes lost because of the decline in the sale of guns and allied products.

The law's supporters generally take the view of Ephraim Gomberg, executive vice president of the Crime Commission of Philadelphia, a private, non-profit organization which has been a consistent supporter of gun control as a crime deterrent.

"If only one serious crime was averted by the ordinance, the law is justified," says Gomberg. He cites police statistics which show that in 1966 the department denied weapons permits to 144 of the more than 5,000 applicants.

Among the 144, according to police, were 30 convicted burglars, 10 robbers, 1 convicted of aggravated assault and battery, a narcotics addict, three rapists, and 1 persons convicted of assault with intent to kill.

Widespread local interest in gun control came in the groundswell of reaction to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. It took, however, the death of a policeman to provide enough public support for City Council to pass the measure.

It was enacted April 16, 1965, seven months after Detective Lt. Daniel J. McCann was shot to death by a woman who obtained a permit for a pistol under her married name despite the fact she had a criminal record under her maiden name.

School Bus Safety Deemed Important Issue To Study

Pickaway County Health Commissioner Frank R. Moore today stressed the importance of school bus safety standards in this and other areas.

He noted that school transportation is constantly increasing.

More than 17 million students ride approximately 220,000 private and public owned vehicles to 45,000 schools each day. The elementary age-group makes up 60 per cent of this total and calls for a program of safe practices as well as having a bus that has safety features designed to protect children within the bus, he said.

During 1965, approximately 3,700 children were injured in school transportation accidents — an increase of 75 per cent over 1960, Dr. Moore pointed out.

The objective of school bus transport is to convey children to and from school safely and at the same time afford each child training in safe practices applying to all bus riding and pedestrian use of the roadway.

It is not enough just to lay down a set of rules covering child conduct. Complete cooperation for safety will best be attained when parents, teachers and bus drivers have a complete realization of the importance of these rules of conduct. A continuing program of traffic safety education, including proper conduct in entering, leaving and riding the bus, is a must, stated commissioner Moore.

The U. S. Public Health Service recently conducted a study at the University of California at Los Angeles relative to school bus seats and reports the following:

Seats in school buses today were reported by researchers to be grossly inadequate for protecting the children from injury and death in a collision. Seats most commonly encountered in school buses have backs that are so low that they can cause serious injury when the bus is struck from the rear or head-on.

The greatest single contribution to bus collision safety is the high strength, high back safety seat. Such a seat was described as having a well padded back, 28 or more inches high, along with well padded arm rests and a restraining device. For school buses with low-back seats (backrest less than 28 inches) built in 1966 and earlier, it is strongly recommended that lap-type safety belts not be installed, unless low backrests are replaced with high ones of adequate design.

It is also recommended that bus drivers and truck drivers wear at least lap-type safety belts when vehicle is in motion and that every boy and girl transported have a seat-no stand-ees.

Discrimination Bill To Undergo Surgery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— An administration bill to outlaw racial discrimination in hiring on public construction projects will undergo major surgery Thursday in the House Labor and Industry Committee.

Rep. Keith McNamara R-64 Columbus, Franklin, the bill's disclosed the move Tuesday night but insisted "it will in no way weaken or strengthen the measure." He said the plan, in effect, called for dividing the proposal into two bills.

McNamara described a pending amendment which would lift and place in a separate measure a provision which would cancel contracts signed under so called "hiring hall" agreements between contractors and building trades unions unless unions include both white and Negroes among their journeymen members or have both available for job referral.

McNamara said the new measure will carry an immediately effective emergency clause.

The lawmaker said all that remained of the original bill would be included in a new emergency bill which he promised to introduce later. Provisions in it would require unions to assure contractors or subcontractors in writing that admission to their referral facilities, whether as apprentices or journeymen, is open to persons of any race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry.

Also in the later bill would be a so-called "quota" system which would require, by Dec. 31, 1967, that every 20th employee referred would be Negro and every 15th a Negro by Jan. 1, 1968.

John M. McElroy, the governor's executive assistant, said the companion bill approach was decided on because of delays in major public works projects and because many contracts "currently are under negotiation and others of like nature will be under negotiation within the next 30 to 60 days."

The governor's aide said he had talked with several contractors who favor the legislative strategy change and had heard negotiation within the next 30 to 60 days.

The governor's aide said he had talked with several contractors who favor the legislative strategy change and had heard no opposition to it. But he said he had not heard from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People which already has labeled the entire package weak and unacceptable.

Random Car Inspection Bill Tossed to Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Republican state senator has tossed a random auto inspection bill into the hotbed of controversy on highway safety in the Ohio General Assembly.

Sen. Ralph S. Regula R-29 Stark introduced the measure Tuesday.

His bill was among three introduced in the Senate. Four were offered in the lower chamber, including one that would outlaw sale of so-called "loss leader" items in dairy and other retail stores. A similar bill was defeated two years ago after arguments that major chain stores sold milk below cost to bring in customers who otherwise might buy from independent retailers.

Regula's bill would call for a system of random auto inspections advocated by the Highway Safety Department and the Ohio Highway Patrol. They oppose compulsory periodic inspections which are included in the embattled omnibus highway safety measure pending in the House.

The freshman senator said his measures would authorize officers to stop vehicles for inspection without noting visible defects as required under present law.

Under the bill, motorists caught violating existing laws against unsafe vehicle operation could be fined $50 for a first offense and $100 for a second offense within a year.

Regula said his proposal probably would require a series of inspection stations at strategic spots to provide facilities needed for checking certain mechanical equipment.

The omnibus highway safety measure, introduced in the House several weeks ago, has undergone the stormiest hearings of the session with most of the dispute centered around a system of inspection.

Bringing pressure to bear has been a provision of the Federal Highway Safety Act of 1966 which requires inspection programs by the end of this year under threat of losing federal highway funds. The act has not been fully implemented and at this point no one seems to know whether such inspections must be periodic or whether a system of random checks would meet its requirements.

Tuesday's House action was highlighted by 94-2 approval of a proposed Ohio-West Virginia air pollution control pact. It now goes to the Senate.

The pact would establish a commission of five members from each state to issue regulations and recommend control action subject to local jurisdiction and court appeal.

The Senate voted 1-0 to increase Welfare Department funeral payments for old age pensioners from $180 to $220 and boost allowable contributions by family and friends from $120 to $180. Sponsors said the bill would permit funeral expenses from both sources totaling $400 compared to a present minimum of $300.

Senators debated about 90 minutes before approving 24 - 8 a bill revising laws covering Ohio's building and loan associations. Generally, the bill would increase the powers of the state superintendent of building and loans and boost minimum authorized capital from $500,000 to $2 million with the superintendent given the discretion of requiring up to $10 million in authorized capital.

Debate centered around provisions requiring firms to obtain approval from the superintendent before relocating offices, giving the superintendent authority to require more than $2 million in capital, and writing a new section covering firm when penalties already are provided under existing laws.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills permitting the Ohio Youth Commission to bypass the Public Works Department in contracting for building repairs up to $10,000 and allow Ohioans age 18-20 to sue and be sued as adults for divorce, annulment and alimony.

Philadelphia Gun Law Seen As Effective

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two years ago Philadelphia restricted the sale of rifles and shotguns as a crime deterrent measure.

Police readily admit no scientific measure is possible to determine the effectiveness of the restriction, but they cite as a gauge, however, statistics which show that homicides dropped 1.2 per cent in the nation's fourth largest city in 1966 over the previous year while all serious crimes dropped 6.4 per cent. The gun law bars the sales of weapons to habitual drunks, narcotics addicts and persons convicted of violent crime.

Opponents of the ordinance, which provides a $300 fine and 90 days in jail, or both, for anyone caught possessing an unregistered rifle or shotgun, claim it is so rigid it is unenforceable.

Irv Joffe, a former Philadelphia gun dealer who moved his shop to suburban Delaware County, claims the law is violated between 65,000 and 85,000 times a year by residents who sell their weapons privately without bothering to have them registered first.

The law, which requires prospective rifle and shotgun owners to be fingerprinted and photographed by police, has put 19 gun dealers out of business in the last year, according to Joffe.

Dealers also claim the law has cost the city $3 million in taxes lost because of the decline in the sale of guns and allied products.

The law's supporters generally take the view of Ephraim Gombert, executive vice president of the Crime Commission of Philadelphia, a private, non-profit organization which has been a consistent supporter of gun control as a crime deterrent.

"If only one serious crime was averted by the ordinance, the law is justified," says Gombert. He cites police statistics which show that in 1966 the department denied weapons permits to 144 of the more than 5,000 applicants.

Among the 144, according to police, were 30 convicted burglars, 10 robbers, 1 convicted of aggravated assault and battery, a narcotics addict, three rapists, and 1 persons convicted of assault with intent to kill.

Widespread local interest in gun control came in the groundswell of reaction to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. It took, however, the death of a policeman to provide enough public support for City Council to pass the measure.

It was enacted April 16, 1965, seven months after Detective Lt. Daniel J. McCann was shot to death by a woman who obtained a permit for a pistol under her married name despite the fact she had a criminal record under her maiden name.

School Bus Safety Deemed Important Issue To Study

Pickaway County Health Commissioner Frank R. Moore today stressed the importance of school bus safety standards in this and other areas.

He noted that school transportation is constantly increasing.

More than 17 million students ride approximately 220,000 private and public owned vehicles to 45,000 schools each day. The elementary age-group makes up 60 per cent of this total and calls for a program of safe practices as well as having a bus that has safety features designed to protect children within the bus, he said.

During 1965, approximately 3,700 children were injured in school transportation accidents — an increase of 75 per cent over 1960, Dr. Moore pointed out.

The objective of school bus transport is to convey children to and from school safely and at the same time afford each child training in safe practices applying to all bus riding and pedestrian use of the roadway.

It is not enough just to lay down a set of rules covering child conduct. Complete cooperation for safety will best be attained when parents, teachers and bus drivers have a complete realization of the importance of these rules of conduct. A continuing program of traffic safety education, including proper conduct in entering, leaving and riding the bus, is a must, stated commissioner Moore.

The U. S. Public Health Service recently conducted a study at the University of California at Los Angeles relative to school bus seats and reports the following:

Seats in school buses today were reported by researchers to be grossly inadequate for protecting the children from injury and death in a collision. Seats most commonly encountered in school buses have backs that are so low that they can cause serious injury when the bus is struck from the rear or head-on.

The greatest single contribution to bus collision safety is the high strength, high back safety seat. Such a seat was described as having a well padded back, 28 or more inches high, along with well padded arm rests and a restraining device. For school buses with low-back seats (backrest less than 28 inches) built in 1966 and earlier, it is strongly recommended that lap-type safety belts not be installed, unless low backrests are replaced with high ones of adequate design.

It is also recommended that bus drivers and truck drivers wear at least lap-type safety belts when vehicle is in motion and that every boy and girl transported have a seat-no stand-ees.

Discrimination Bill To Undergo Surgery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An administration bill to outlaw racial discrimination in hiring on public construction projects will undergo major surgery Thursday in the House Labor and Industry Committee.

Rep. Keith McNamara R-64 Columbus, Franklin, the bill's disclosed the move Tuesday night but insisted "it will in no way weaken or strengthen the measure." He said the plan, in effect, called for dividing the proposal into two bills.

McNamara described a pending amendment which would lift and place in a separate measure a provision which would cancel contracts signed under so-called "hiring hall" agreements between contractors and building trades unions unless unions include both white and Negroes among their journeymen members or have both available for job referral.

McNamara said the new measure will carry an immediately effective emergency clause.

The lawmaker said all that remained of the original bill would be included in a new emergency bill which he promised to introduce later. Provisions in it would require unions to assure contractors or subcontractors in writing that admission to their referral facilities, whether as apprentices or journeymen, is open to persons of any race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boycotts of supermarkets by disgruntled housewives last year paid off mainly in improved communication between buyer and seller, says Esther Peterson.

Mrs. Peterson, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, sees this as all to the good, even though it probably wasn't what the ladies on the picket lines were fighting for.

"The demand primarily was for lower prices and fewer promotional devices," she said Tuesday in assessing the short-lived revolts.

"Measurable results were relatively few and far between. But the protests were a catalyst to an already growing business awareness of consumer dissatisfaction, and led to even stronger efforts to explain industry's problem.

"In the long run, this changed attitude should be beneficial to both consumers and businessmen alike."

Betty Furness, the former TV refrigerator saleslady, will take over as the consumers' spokesman in Washington May 1. Mrs. Peterson, who has been juggling both jobs for three years now, is going back fulltime to her post as assistant secretary of labor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Air Force official cites a rocket fuel contract on which Olin Matheson Chemical Corp. reaped a 49 per cent profit as typical of the way the services occasionally are put over a barrel when there is only one supplier for something they want to buy.

In a report to Congress Tuesday, Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the Air Force, said Olin received $28 million for fuel for Titan missiles and its costs were $19 million. By supplying some of the raw material from its own chemical plant the company turned an additional profit of $1.8 million, he said.

Neither party to the contract knew in advance how much the project would cost but there should be "some protection against an unreasonably high price," Staats said.

In rebuttal, Olin said it had suffered major losses on earlier fuel contracts with the government. When the fuel for the Titan was needed urgently, the company said, "Olin was apparently the only company in which the Air Force had confidence as a potential supplier of these requirements."

Negro Youth Group Opposes Recent Wave of Vandalism

CLEVELAND (AP) — A predominantly Negro group of young people from the Glenville and Hough areas spoke out Monday against a recent wave of vandalism by their peers.

"Our people is the distorted image of the Negro youth in our community," said a statement by a spokesman for the 45 students from East, East Technical, Glenville, John Hay and Thomas Edison high schools.

The students, all Negroes except for two whites and one Chinese, met with the Cleveland Board of Education.

"We represent approximately 10,000 Negro students, the majority of which do not condone the behavior of a small minority group. We are extremely concerned because these actions jeopardize our future," they stated.

They said they discussed and drew up the statement without any adult supervision.

Mrs. Conella C. Brown, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools for human relations, said the meeting was first proposed by Glenville students.

"They felt that the unfavorable publicity the area was having because of crime and vandalism damaged them when they went looking for jobs," she said.

Negroes have been led to believe that the recent outbreak of violence and vandalism will help further the cause of civil rights. However, we are of the opinion that this is misleading," said the group.

Negro Youth Group Opposes Recent Wave of Vandalism

CLEVELAND (AP) — A predominantly Negro group of young people from the Glenville and Hough areas spoke out Monday against a recent wave of vandalism by their peers.

"Our people is the distorted image of the Negro youth in our community," said a statement by a spokesman for the 45 students from East, East Technical, Glenville, John Hay and Thomas Edison high schools.

The students, all Negroes except for two whites and one Chinese, met with the Cleveland Board of Education.

"We represent approximately 10,000 Negro students, the majority of which do not condone the behavior of a small minority group. We are extremely concerned because these actions jeopardize our future," they stated.

They said they discussed and drew up the statement without any adult supervision.

Mrs. Conella C. Brown, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools for human relations, said the meeting was first proposed by Glenville students.

"They felt that the unfavorable publicity the area was having because of crime and vandalism damaged them when they went looking for jobs," she said.

Negroes have been led to believe that the recent outbreak of violence and vandalism will help further the cause of civil rights. However, we are of the opinion that this is misleading," said the group.

BOLENS LAWN KEEPER

Makes one-pass mowing a reality!

The Bolens Lawn Keeper ends most hand trimming. You sit up-front, on top of the mower for a clear, unobstructed view. With Bolens exclusive center pivot steering, you'll twist through the most challenging obstacles with ease. You'll cut square corners, circle trees and shrubs and edge right up to walks and fences. The Lawn Keeper mows in places where only hand clippers used to reach. Try the Lawn Keeper at your Bolens dealer and prove it to yourself. With its tiny 16" turning radius, this is the most maneuverable riding mower made. For year round use it powers a snow/grader blade and steel utility cart.

Gladys O'Donnell Says She'll Win GOP Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gladys O'Donnell predicts she'll be a 2 to 1 winner in the race for the presidency of the 500,000-member National Federation of Republican Women.

A veteran of GOP politics, Mrs. O'Donnell, a Long Beach, Calif., businesswoman and air race pilot is running as head of a "unity team" ticket — the official slate of the federation's nominating committee.

She says she may have to concede her home state but otherwise "it looks extremely good" now to beat Phyllis Schlafly for the presidency.

Mrs. Schlafly, 43, Alton, Ill., author of the 1964 campaign booklet "A Choice Not an Echo" and now federation first vice president, plans to make a floor fight at the federation's May 5-6 convention here. There are 4,649 eligible delegate votes.

Mrs. Schlafly also claims victory and was campaigning last week as a delegate and speaker at the Daughters of the American Revolution's congress, while Mrs. O'Donnell has been speech-making in the South.

The two contenders appeared for the first time on the same speaking circuit last Thursday at the Georgia Federation of Republican Women in a bid for that state's 94 delegates. But they didn't even meet while circulating at an hour-long reception.

The issue between the two is mainly a matter of degree of conservative Republicanism. Mrs. O'Donnell has been described as a moderate conservative, Mrs. Schlafly as far right.

"I'm just a plain, uncomplicated Republican," Mrs. O'Donnell said in a telephone interview. She contended "we must accommodate the complete spectrum of Republican thinking and maintain a climate in which all Republicans can be comfortable and feel welcome. This is the only road to victory."

Mrs. O'Donnell thinks the big issue in politics today — "the one on which the next election may be won" — is Vietnam. In a credo she is distributing, she declares "there is no substitute for victory" and she calls U.S. Vietnam policy "terribly mismanaged."

Nearly 5 feet 8, with short reddish-blond hair, blue eyes and a soft voice, Mrs. O'Donnell is a widow with five grandchildren. A native of Whittier, Calif., she runs a crude oil business. A former Powder Puff Derby women's air race winner, she still pilots her own plane.

In California politics Mrs. O'Donnell headed a statewide women's campaign for William F. Knowland for governor and helped persuade George Murphy and Ronald Reagan to run. Mrs. O'Donnell says she'll

Percy Is Potentially GOP Peace Campaigner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois is emerging among Republicans as a man who could carry the credentials of a Vietnam peace campaigner into a race for the White House.

Percy heavily underscored in recent days his differences with President Johnson's war policy and: by implication, with Republicans who endorse that policy—including other GOP leaders now considered prospects for the presidential nomination.

He has called for a stepped-up peace effort, emphasizing Asian initiative, for an end to military escalation, and for greater restraint in American bombing of North Vietnam.

At the annual meeting Monday of The Associated Press, he registered a "strong dissent" over U.S. bombing of airfields in the Communist North.

Percy has not advocated military withdrawal, nor has he suggested a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam without some peace move by the Communists.

At the same time, Percy has carved a leading GOP role on a major domestic issue looming for 1968: the critical problems facing American cities.

He won unanimous sponsorship of his 35 Republican Senate colleagues for his bill to promote home ownership as a step toward improving life in the slums.

Vietnam and urban turmoil could be the two key issues in the next presidential campaign. Percy has said repeatedly he is not a candidate, but has not flatly ruled himself out of that campaign.

"I cannot foresee any circumstances under which I would be compelled to be a candidate," he said Sunday.

For three days now, Percy has been elaborating his Vietnam position. The process began Saturday with a call for redoubled peace efforts.

"The only rational policy is to pursue peace with at least as much vigor and invention as we now pursue war," Percy said.

On Sunday, he criticized current bombing policies, saying U.S. warplanes should aim at carefully selected infiltration routes, not at power plants and similar targets.

"If we bomb all over North Vietnam, we constantly run the risk of involving innocent people innocent civilians who have not been forewarned that there will be bombing in those areas," Percy said.

At the AP meeting in New York, Percy restated his critical view of administration peace terms, suggested Asian nations send more troops to Vietnam and proposed once again they take the initiative in seeking a settlement.

Counseling against escalation of any sort, he said the United States must limit both its combat measures and its settlement

Capital Alumni Reorganize Local Chapter

A Capital University Alumni Chapter was reorganized following a banquet at the Pickaway Arms.

This is the 55th chapter organized according to Eugene Meyer, director of Alumni relations.

The capital Ambassadors, four students attending the University, presented slides and commentary on present campus scenes and outlines of plans for the future.

A brief business meeting resulted in the formation of a steering committee composed of Mrs. Bruce Connor, Dr. Nancy Lu Conrad, Mrs. Turman Eberly, Miss Carolyn Fudge and Mrs. Gardner Wilson.

Ohio Civil Rights Commission Aims To Make Itself Unnecessary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When Ohio's Civil Rights Commission is completely successful, it will put itself out of business.

Executive director Ellis Ross doesn't expect to be out of a job in the near future, but he does have heartening statistics on the work of the eight-year-old agency.

The commission has investigated more than 2,500 cases of alleged discrimination in jobs, housing and public accommodations. It has obtained compliance in more than 1,300, and has resorted to formal public hearings on only 21 occasions.

Informal conferences are always tried first, and they usually work.

"We would much rather go that route," Ross said. "It means less cost to the taxpayer."

The threat of an open hearing is a "very powerful persuader," Ross added, and voluntary conciliation agreements usually result.

The commission was created in 1959 to enforce the fair employment practices law passed that year. Later bills extended its authority to housing and public accommodations.

Problems investigated by the commission last year ranged from a real estate broker who suddenly claimed he "lost his listing" on a lot when a Negro couple tried to buy it, to a modeling agency which said "special problems" made it impossible to accept Negro trainees.

"From our files alone," says Ross, "we know that there are violators who are now in compliance because of our intervention."

The commission's greatest success has been in the field of public accommodations—restaurants and bars, recreation spots, transportation, barber shops and hospitals. Such cases are easiest to identify and simplest to remedy, Ross said.

A public accommodations law was passed in 1961, and the commission received a total of 226 complaints of violations in the following two years.

Since 1963 the number of complaints has dropped steadily, with only 33 last year. This is proof, says Ross, that owners of public places are getting the message.

"People find out the law is for real," Ross said. "they find out by word of mouth, and we have diminishing difficulty."

Of the 21 cases which have gone as far as formal hearings, four have been in job discrimination, two in housing and 15 in public accommodations.

Five of the cases have arisen in Cleveland, four in Columbus, three in Akron and two each in Cincinnati and Ravenna.

There have been single cases in Dayton, Xenia, Toledo, Lebanon, Youngstown, Canton and Portsmouth.

Unlike in other major states, the commissioners do not exercise their right to act as hearing examiners. They appoint attorneys or college law professors to hear the cases. "Sometimes they have ruled against us," Ellis adds.

If an individual who has appeared at a public hearing defies the commission's order to end a discriminatory practice, the commission seeks an injunction in the common pleas court where the alleged offense took place.

The violator is then subject to contempt proceedings if he does not comply, or he may contest the case in court. So far, only seven violators have challenged the commission in court.

The commissioners also hold some cases open for periodic review. Ellis said the agency "is not so naive anymore" as to assume that actual compliance follows the signing of a conciliation agreement.

Ross noted that some Ohio cities have passed their own civil rights and open housing laws, "which must of necessity accomplish more than that where the alleged offense took place."

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People here feels the chief problem is not with laws but with personnel shortages on the state level.

Harold Strickland, a Columbus field secretary for the NAACP, says, "Our position is that the Ohio Civil Rights Commission needs a larger budget and more staff, comparable to New York and Michigan, to go about its responsibilities."

The commission, besides its Columbus office, maintains branches in Cleveland, Toledo and Cincinnati. There are 17 investigators, including the directors of each office.

School Board Quarters Burn At Mansfield

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—The headquarters of the Mansfield Board of Education, established in a converted two-story frame residence, was destroyed by fire Tuesday and school officials said the loss would run into "many thousands of dollars."

The fire broke out in a basement of the building. Firemen battled the flames for several hours.

W. W. Zinser, superintendent of schools, said the loss would be considerable because of data equipment and other office equipment in the building.

Many cabinet files containing school records were saved by firemen, but the building's interior was destroyed.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Forbidden Bombing Zone Air Strike Ban Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resumption of U.S. air attacks on military targets in the vicinity of Hanoi ends the ban President Johnson imposed last December on air strikes within about 10 miles of the center of the North Vietnamese capital.

The forbidden zone was never officially announced but authorities quietly confirmed its existence months ago.

The ban ended today when U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs struck a railroad repair yard 2 1/4 miles from the center of the city and an electric transformer site 7 miles from the center.

The attacks had been foreshadowed Monday when U.S. planes struck for the first time two airfields serving Soviet-designed MIG fighter planes.

One of the most important elements of the policy of escalation in targeting, informants here agree privately, is the stone-wall stand which the government of President Ho Chi Minh has taken against any kind of peace moves.

In the view of some officials the Hanoi tough line on peace proposals and the newest potential threat of direct mass invasion against South Vietnam have justified Johnson in stepping up bombing pressures on the North. This in turn presumably brought reconsideration of the no-strike circle around Hanoi.

The forbidden zone was set up after worldwide uproar resulted from a mid-December strike against targets at Hanoi — a railway yard and a truck park.

Policy makers conceded after the attack on MIG bases was announced that this shift in U.S. targeting raised the question whether the North Vietnamese might now seek to base some of the MIGs on fields in border regions of Communist China.

That in turn has raised the question which administration officials now call very speculative about whether the United States might feel itself compelled in time to attack MIG bases in China and whether this might force Red China into the war.

Up to the last few days the danger of involving Red China was advanced by officials here as the major reason why there was no need to attack the MIG fields even though intelligence reports made it clear that the number of North Vietnam's fighters was growing.

Officials, explaining the decision now to attack, say that in the last few weeks the MIGs have become much more active against U.S. attack planes.

As recently as April 3 Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said the decision not to bomb MIG bases "is based on the desire to avoid widening the war."

He said "the loss in U.S. lives will be less if we pursue our present target policy than they would if we were to attack those fields." But he added that the policy could change.

In New York Monday, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam who addressed a meeting of The Associated Press, said he was delighted with the attack on the bases.

"It is true that MIGs could take sanctuary in Red China," he said but they would be at a disadvantage. Their vacation time would be decreased and they would therefore be a lesser threat to our fighter bombers."

Westmoreland said "the end is not in sight, and we must be prepared for more bitter fighting in days to come."

His words contrasted sharply with those of retiring Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Westmoreland's diplomatic teammate in Saigon, who told the AP in earlier interviews that he thought the military war in South Vietnam would be substantially won this year and that the percentage of U.S. casualties would decline.

In line with Westmoreland's grim forecast several elements of escalation have developed in recent weeks.

The North Vietnamese are reported to have concentrated four divisions, or about 40,000 men, in the southern part of their country just across a dividing zone which is supposed to be demilitarized. U.S. officials have been worried about the possibility of a direct, large-scale invasion of the northern provinces of South Vietnam; U.S. forces have been concentrated in defense opposite the North Vietnamese.

A week ago United States planes hit power plants in North Vietnam's chief port city, Haiphong. The strike marked a new step in the bombing strategy in the North, carrying the war into a strategically important town. Seaborne supplies move through Haiphong, although main arms shipments from the Soviet Union and China are reported to move overland through China.

What some U.S. officials call the stone-wall stand of Ho Chi Minh developed as peace probes reached a climax last January.

President Johnson wrote Ho asking talks and offering terms to halt the bombing. He rejected both. The rejection did not surprise U.S. officials, though Johnson apparently had hoped that Ho would at least try to bargain and an exchange might be opened up.

The real shocker to Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk came in March when Ho made his exchange with Johnson public, an act that was read here as evidence of a triumph for the "hawk" viewpoint in Ho's inner circle.

Johnson apparently wanted to refrain from attacks in or near

Hanoi while peace probes were building up during the first two months of this year in the hope that the very lack of attacks would be accepted by the North Vietnamese as an evidence of how the conflict could be scaled down.

But today's attacks show the U.S. belief that this element of strategy should now be changed.

Rathbone was understating the importance of his role in tonight's NBC production of an original drama, "Soldier in Love." But he was being precise about his interest in the role of a royal Stuart in a story about the influence of John and Sarah Churchill on Britain's 18th century Queen Anne.

Rathbone, with 50 years in the theater behind him, most of them as a star, has aged like a good wine. For him, the pay is the thing.

"I like history and find more pleasure in the unpleasantnesses of the past," he said. "Somehow I fail to find the equivalent, as an actor, in the unpleasant unpleasantnesses of the present. In this case, there was also in me a certain facial resemblance to those long, thin Stuarts."

He has appeared in over 100 motion pictures but is best known for 14 Sherlock Holmes films which identified him so completely with the fiction detective that at one time he found himself a prisoner of the role.

"Not a single producer would touch me," he recalled. "One had a great role but said that the moment I walked out everyone in the audience would think one thing: Sherlock Holmes."

He said that television, with such roles as the evil inquisitor in "The Lark" and "Victoria Regina's" Disraeli had helped his public image to a point where "there is no prejudice anymore."

ABC's "War in the Skies" Tuesday night began with the familiar documentary technique of following one man through a real life adventure — in this case leaving Florida to serve as a F100 pilot providing air cover for U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The human interest angle was soon lost amid more dramatic material. This included the delicate and dangerous business of in-flight refueling over the Pacific and sweating out the rescue by helicopter of a pilot shot down in a jungle.

HOLLYWOOD BROWN DERBY DEAR ABBY: To tip or not to tip a waiter who is also a good friend:

Since tips are his main source of income, why not I have no qualms whatsoever accepting payment for the dental work I do for my friends.

NEWCASTLE DENTIST

DEAR ABBY: I am a waiter in one of the most famous resorts in the Catskills, so I can speak with some authority on whether to tip a friend who waits on you.

The friend who sits at your table is taking up the same amount of space and time as a stranger would, so I say he should leave a tip.

I might add that I have been a waiter for nearly 20 years and I saw only one waiter who was "insulted" when a friend of his left a tip. (This waiter went to the men's room and cried, so you know what kind of "man" he was.)

little-known military operation. Leonard Bernstein Tuesday night was explaining young music to old viewers instead of vice versa. He expressed admiration for — and some alarm about — the current expression in popular music of the ideas and opinions of the young generation.

Much of the hour program, "The Rock Revolution" was given over to rebellious young people, many of them musicians, arguing heatedly about universal love, war and peace, social protest and individual freedom. The fiery presentation was an eye-opener for an adult viewer who finds it difficult to understand pop song lyrics with all the other noises that surround them.

Recommended tonight: "Soldier in Love," BC, 7:0-9 EST, historical drama in the "Hall of Fame" series.

to a waiter who also is a personal friend is as justified as paying for groceries even tho the grocer is your grandfather.

An exception may be noted: If the waiter invites you to drop by for an evening to enjoy the cuisine and the show, a tip would not be in order since it was his suggestion that you spend an evening at his table.

RUSSELL AT THE FLAME ROOM

DEAR ABBY: After my husband died, I was left with no financial assets — only bills, so I returned to college at the age of 30 to get my degree. To accomplish this, I took a job as a cocktail waitress.

I had to eat, pay my bills, and drive my car, and I tipped just as everyone is expected to do.

One of these days I am going to get my teeth fixed, my gallstones removed, patronize a beauty parlor regularly, and even take a trip and stay in certain hotels. But this won't cost me as much as you think, because I am going to all my "good friends" who never tipped because they didn't want to "insult" me. So I won't "insult" them by offering them money either.

POLLY

DEAR ABBY: Waiters very often belong to a "pool" or "kitty," and must share their tips with other waiters, busboys, and sometimes captains, so they cannot rightfully refuse tips that do not belong to them entirely. That is why my husband who is a waiter is obliged to accept a tip from his own father!

Argentina's Future Termed Vital To Latin America

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — What happens here in the next year is likely to affect the future of all Latin America.

Neighbors are watching a situation full of paradoxes and dilemmas. Since last June, when the military regime of Juan Carlos Ongania came into being by overthrowing the elected government of President Arturo Illia, Argentina has been ruled by a dictatorship which seems trying not to be a dictatorship.

The Ongania regime adopts the measures of a dictatorship: suppression of political parties, control of labor unions and so forth, without displaying the familiar trappings of dictatorship. There is none of the pervasive fear, the dread of police, the sensation of the ever watchful eye which are associated with dictatorship elsewhere.

In many ways, Argentina is unique in Latin America. One of its major problems often seems to the outsider to be that it has had too much and done too little with it.

Argentina eats better and drinks better than any Latin American nation, and better than most in the world. It eats more meat — over 200 pounds per person annually — than almost any other nation. It drinks more wine than any — almost 24 gallons per person per year.

There are many poor people in terms of housing and clothing, but a hungry person is a rarity. This makes Argentina greatly different from other Latin American nations.

There are jobs to spare, yet there is an unemployment problem. Some say the labor force has too long been over protected and over pampered. What began in the Juan D. Peron dictatorship years — the use of organized labor as an instrument of political power — remains as a hangover. Organized labor, predominantly Peronista, is a powerful political force.

The farms are well off and some ranchers are rich, yet agricultural problems must be solved if the Ongania regime is to realize its goals. Argentine politicians have been urban-minded, oriented toward industrialization as their most important goal.

This richly productive nation could double and triple its farm output and its output of beef with little difficulty. The problem would be how and where to market it.

The Ongania regime has a long distance to travel before it proves itself. With the sort of program it has now, it could not dream of going before the voters for a mandate. Argentines are too well conditioned to another way of life which involves no sacrifices for over-all national welfare.

President Ongania claims to be intent on heading this country back in the direction of private enterprise. But experts say that, at least on the surface, 90 per cent of Argentina's population is not really in favor of private enterprise. Their habits have been in the other direction under the superwelfare dictatorship of Peron and the cautious echo of it in the regimes which followed him. Peronists and leftists can dominate the vote. Up to now they have indicated faith in a large degree of state control and a dislike of foreign investment.

It will take time to change the philosophy and psychology. Ongania himself appears to think it can take 10 years. He will have to stave off the political restlessness which is bound to accompany a lack of visible achievement.

To watching Latin America, all this means a great deal.

But Argentina's economy is an eternal puzzle. In 12 years, Argentina has had 17 ministers of economy. They tend not to last long in the job.

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP)—Ashland County Prosecutor Joseph Murray said Monday that letters have been found in the apartment of Edson R. Kurtz here in which Kurtz admitted killing a 26-year-old Ashland divorcee whose body was found in a cabin seven miles north of Ashland last Tuesday.

The decomposed body of Mrs. Cleda M. Smith was found on a bed in a cabin at Spring Lake. The prosecutor said she had been shot twice in the head.

Kurtz, 46, was found dead Saturday in his automobile parked eight miles northeast of here. A hose attached to the car's exhaust pipe was extended through a rear-seat window.

Murray said letters which Kurtz had written to his father but never mailed told how Kurtz shot Mrs. Smith last Jan. 4 on the eve of her divorce trial. Murray said the letters were found in a filing cabinet in Kurtz's apartment along with a .38-caliber pistol.

DEAR ABBY: Offering a tip

little-known military operation. Leonard Bernstein Tuesday night was explaining young music to old viewers instead of vice versa. He expressed admiration for — and some alarm about — the current expression in popular music of the ideas and opinions of the young generation.

Much of the hour program, "The Rock Revolution" was given over to rebellious young people, many of them musicians, arguing heatedly about universal love, war and peace, social protest and individual freedom. The fiery presentation was an eye-opener for an adult viewer who finds it difficult to understand pop song lyrics with all the other noises that surround them.

to a waiter who also is a personal friend is as justified as paying for groceries even tho the grocer is your grandfather.

An exception may be noted: If the waiter invites you to drop by for an evening to enjoy the cuisine and the show, a tip would not be in order since it was his suggestion that you spend an evening at his table.

RUSSELL AT THE FLAME ROOM

DEAR ABBY: After my husband died, I was left with no financial assets — only bills, so I returned to college at the age of 30 to get my degree. To accomplish this, I took a job as a cocktail waitress.

I had to eat, pay my bills, and drive my car, and I tipped just as everyone is expected to do.

One of these days I am going to get my teeth fixed, my gallstones removed, patronize a beauty parlor regularly, and even take a trip and stay in certain hotels. But this won't cost me as much as you think, because I am going to all my "good friends" who never tipped because they didn't want to "insult" me. So I won't "insult" them by offering them money either.

POLLY

DEAR ABBY: Waiters very often belong to a "pool" or "kitty," and must share their tips with other waiters, busboys, and sometimes captains, so they cannot rightfully refuse tips that do not belong to them entirely. That is why my husband who is a waiter is obliged to accept a tip from his own father!

Argentina's Future Termed Vital To Latin America

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — What happens here in the next year is likely to affect the future of all Latin America.

Neighbors are watching a situation full of paradoxes and dilemmas. Since last June, when the military regime of Juan Carlos Ongania came into being by overthrowing the elected government of President Arturo Illia, Argentina has been ruled by a dictatorship which seems trying not to be a dictatorship.

The Ongania regime adopts the measures of a dictatorship: suppression of political parties, control of labor unions and so forth, without displaying the familiar trappings of dictatorship. There is none of the pervasive fear, the dread of police, the sensation of the ever watchful eye which are associated with dictatorship elsewhere.

In many ways, Argentina is unique in Latin America. One of its major problems often seems to the outsider to be that it has had too much and done too little with it.

Argentina eats better and drinks better than any Latin American nation, and better than most in the world. It eats more meat — over 200 pounds per person annually — than almost any other nation. It drinks more wine than any — almost 24 gallons per person per year.

There are many poor people in terms of housing and clothing, but a hungry person is a rarity. This makes Argentina greatly different from other Latin American nations.

There are jobs to spare, yet there is an unemployment problem. Some say the labor force has too long been over protected and over pampered. What began in the Juan D. Peron dictatorship years — the use of organized labor as an instrument of political power — remains as a hangover. Organized labor, predominantly Peronista, is a powerful political force.

The farms are well off and some ranchers are rich, yet agricultural problems must be solved if the Ongania regime is to realize its goals. Argentine politicians have been urban-minded, oriented toward industrialization as their most important goal.

This richly productive nation could double and triple its farm output and its output of beef with little difficulty. The problem would be how and where to market it.

The Ongania regime has a long distance to travel before it proves itself. With the sort of program it has now, it could not dream of going before the voters for a mandate. Argentines are too well conditioned to another way of life which involves no sacrifices for over-all national welfare.

President Ongania claims to be intent on heading this country back in the direction of private enterprise. But experts say that, at least on the surface, 90 per cent of Argentina's population is not really in favor of private enterprise. Their habits have been in the other direction under the superwelfare dictatorship of Peron and the cautious echo of it in the regimes which followed him. Peronists and leftists can dominate the vote. Up to now they have indicated faith in a large degree of state control and a dislike of foreign investment.

It will take time to change the philosophy and psychology. Ongania himself appears to think it can take 10 years. He will have to stave off the political restlessness which is bound to accompany a lack of visible achievement.

To watching Latin America, all this means a great deal. But Argentina's economy is an eternal puzzle. In 12 years, Argentina has had 17 ministers of economy. They tend not to last long in the job.

SF Giants Stop Cincy Reds, 6-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National League teams beware: the streak-breaking San Francisco Giants are on a tear.

Manager Herman Franks' charges for the third time in a week snapped a lengthy winning streak as Juan Marichal stopped the Cincinnati Reds 6-1 Tuesday night.

It was last Tuesday that San Francisco shattered the St. Louis Cardinals' seven-game win skein with a 7-5 win. Saturday the Atlanta Braves visited Candlestick Park with a five-game streak, only to bow 6-5.

Tuesday night the Reds brought a record on five straight wins into the Giants' park but fell victim to Marichal's first victory of the season after three losses.

Jim Hart applied all the offense Marichal needed by powering his first home run of the season of Reds' rookie right-hander Gary Nolan following a walk to Ken Henderson in the first inning.

Doubles by Jesus Alou and Marichal made it 3-0 in the second, and a three-run rally closed the scoring in the sixth and sent Nolan to the showers.

Hart and Tom Haller launched the kayo punch with successive singles. Pinch hitter Jack Hiatt walked on reliever Gerry Arrigo to load the bases.

Alou then ripped a grounder to third baseman Deron Johnson, who threw wildly past catcher Johnny Edwards or an error as Hart and Alou scored.

Hal Lanier's sacrifice fly brought home Hiatt.

Marichal's shutout bid was spoiled when Tony Perez hit his third homer of the year or the Reds in the top of the sixth. He scattered seven hits.

Said Marichal, "I got Perez out twice with curves, so the third time I tried to read his mind."

"The trouble was," he mused, "Perez read mine instead and hit a good fastball or the home run."

Nolan, an 18-year-old youth from Oroville, Calif., was dejected in the Reds' dressing room after losing his first major league game.

"It was just one of those nights," he lamented. "My control wasn't bad, but it wasn't good enough."

"Hart hit a curve ball that didn't break," Nolan explained.

The Giants played without slugging first baseman Willie McCovey, sent home with a nose infection and a slight fever. He was expected to be in the lineup or today's game with the Reds.

Class AAA International League Gets Under Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four teams are rated pennant threats and two others possible contenders for the 84th baseball season of the Class AAA International League which gets under way tonight.

The preseason line puts the mantle of favoritism on Rochester's defending regular season champion Red Wings, the Richmond Braves, Columbus Jets and Buffalo Bisons.

Jacksonville's Suns and Toronto's Maple Leafs are given an outside shot. The Toledo Mud Hens and Syracuse Chiefs will surprise almost everybody if they make a first-place run.

No less than seven new managers make their debut tonight. The lone holdover is Earl Waver, who guided Rochester to the pennant, then saw the Wings beaten in the first-season playoffs.

There has been one switch in major league affiliations between Toledo and Syracuse. The New York Yankees moved from Toledo to Syracuse, the Detroit Tigers from Syracuse to Toledo.

Tonight's opening schedule has Toronto at Toledo, Buffalo at Columbus, Syracuse at Richmond and Rochester at Jacksonville.

SF Giants Stop Cincy Reds, 6-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National League teams beware: the streak-breaking San Francisco Giants are on a tear. Manager Herman Franks' charges for the third time in a week snapped a lengthy winning streak as Juan Marichal stopped the Cincinnati Reds 6-1 Tuesday night.

It was last Tuesday that San Francisco shattered the St. Louis Cardinals' seven-game win skein with a 7-5 win. Saturday the Atlanta Braves visited Candlestick Park with a five-game streak, only to bow 6-5.

Tuesday night the Reds brought a record on five straight wins into the Giants' park but fell victim to Marichal's first victory of the season after three losses.

Jim Hart applied all the offense Marichal needed by powering his first home run of the season of Reds' rookie right-hander Gary Nolan following a walk to Ken Henderson in the first inning.

Doubles by Jesus Alou and Marichal made it 3-0 in the second, and a three-run rally closed the scoring in the sixth and sent Nolan to the showers. Hart and Tom Haller launched the kayo punch with successive singles. Pinch hitter Jack Hiatt walked on reliever Gerry Arigo to load the bases. Alou then ripped a grounder to third baseman Deron Johnson, who threw wildly past catcher Johnny Edwards or an error as Hart and Alou scored. Hal Lanier's sacrifice fly brought home Hiatt.

Marichal's shutout bid was spoiled when Tony Perez hit his third homer of the year or the Reds in the top of the sixth. He scattered seven hits.

Said Marichal, "I got Perez out twice with curves, so the third time I tried to read his mind."

"The trouble was," he mused, "Perez read mine instead and hit a good fastball or the home run."

Nolan, an 18-year-old youth from Oroville, Calif., was de-fected in the Reds' dressing room after losing his first major league game.

"It was just one of those nights," he lamented. "My control wasn't bad, but it wasn't good enough."

"Hart hit a curve ball that didn't break," Nolan explained.

The Giants played without slugging first baseman Willie McCovey, sent home with a nose infection and a slight fever. He was expected to be in the lineup or today's game with the Reds.

Super Bowl Game
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the national Football League, conferred with Orange Bowl officials Tuesday and said Miami is strongly being considered for the 1968 Super Bowl football game.

Class AAA International League Gets Under Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four teams are rated pennant threats and two others possible contenders for the 84th baseball season of the Class AAA International League which gets under way tonight.

The preseason line puts the mantle of favoritism on Rochester's defending regular season champion Red Wings, the Richmond Braves, Columbus Jets and Buffalo Bisons.

Jacksonville's Suns and Toronto's Maple Leafs are given an outside shot. The Toledo Mud Hens and Syracuse Chiefs will surprise almost everybody if they make a first-place run.

No less than seven new managers make their debut tonight. The lone holdover is Earl Weaver, who guided Rochester to the pennant, then saw the Wings beaten in the first-season playoffs.

There has been one switch in major league affiliations between Toledo and Syracuse. The New York Yankees moved from Toledo to Syracuse, the Detroit Tigers from Syracuse to Toledo.

Tonight's opening schedule has Toronto at Toledo, Buffalo at Columbus, Syracuse at Richmond and Rochester at Jacksonville.

St. Louis Cardinals Top Houston Astros, 4-0

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bob Aspromonte has lined up with one-shot villains Elston Howard and Jim Fregosi on the pitchers' union's Unwanted List.

But the Houston third baseman rates a special spot — alongside ex-teammate Joe Amalfitano — on Al Jackson's personal ledger.

Jackson, St. Louis' stylish little left-hander, allowed only one hit — a leadoff single by Aspromonte in the eighth inning — as the Cardinals blanked the staggering Astros 4-0 Tuesday night.

It was the third one-hitter in the majors this spring — and the second for Jackson in his seven-year National League career. Each time, he has been picked on Houston.

Bill Rohr of Boston, making his first big league start 11 days ago against New York, held the Yankees hitless until Howard singled with two out in the ninth. Two days later, Baltimore's Steve Barber went into the ninth with a no-hitter against California before yielding a one-out single by Fregosi.

In 1962, Jackson's first year with the New York Mets, the slender sinkerballer fired a one-hitter against Houston, giving up a first-inning single to Amalfitano before slamming the door.

Aspromonte broke up the no-hit bid Tuesday night with a line shot to left. Otherwise, Jackson who came to St. Louis in a 1965 winter trade and posted a 13-15 record last year, was in complete command. He walked three and struck out three in his early-season record to 2-1.

"It was one of my best games because I was in control all the way," he said afterward. "The pressure stopped building after we got the 4-0 lead. Then, the long ball wouldn't have hurt as much."

While Jackson was pinning Houston with its ninth straight loss, Juan Marichal won for the first time in four decisions, scattering seven hits in the Giants 6-1 victory over Cincinnati.

In other National League games the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings behind rookie Tom Seaver's four-hitter; Pittsburgh whipped Philadelphia 7-3 and Atlanta rocked Los Angeles 7-1.

The New York Yankees battered the Chicago White Sox 11-2; Cleveland nipped Minnesota 1-0; Detroit shut out Kansas City 5-0; Baltimore shaded California 2-1 and Boston whipped Washington 9-3 in the American League.

Catcher Tim McCarver gave Jackson all the help he needed with a two-run homer off loser Chris Zachary in the second inning. Lou Brock doubled and scored in the third, then rapped a run-scoring single in the fourth.

Marichal, who held out for a month this spring after compiling a 25-6 mark in 1966, then lost his first three starts, ended Cincinnati's five-game winning string after pitching out of jams in the second and third innings.

Tony Perez's sixth-inning homer ruined the Giant ace's shut-out bid.

Jim Hart pounded a two-run homer in the first inning, Marichal doubled another run across in the second and the giants knocked out Cincinnati rookie Gary Nolan with three more in the sixth.

Seaver singled for the Mets in the 10th inning, took second on a sacrifice and third on a wild pitch, and scored the winning run on Al Luplow's single. The Cubs had tied it in the ninth when Don Kessinger scored from second on a two-out error by shortstop Ken Harrelson.

Willie Stargell lashed a homer and single, drove in four runs and led the Pirates past Philadelphia. Reliever Billy O'Dell blanked the Phillies over the last 4 1-3 innings to earn the victory.

Rico Carty slammed a two-run homer and Mack Jones knocked in two runs with a single and double as the Braves trimmed the Dodgers behind right-hander Ken Johnson, who scattered seven hits.

Indians' Steve Hargan Has 0.00 ERA

CLEVELAND (AP) — What happens if Steve Hargan starts bearing down?

The Cleveland right-hander has a 0.00 earned run average now and says, "I'm not trying to throw too hard."

He threw hard enough for a two-hit victory over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday night, stopping the Indians' four-game losing streak.

Hargan (2-1) isn't satisfied with just a fast ball and slider, but is "working on other pitches, particularly a curve and changeup."

About 80 per cent of his 111 pitches against the Twins were fast balls and catcher Duke Sims said "I've seen him just as good on a couple of other occasions, but never any better. His fast ball was as lively as any I've ever caught."

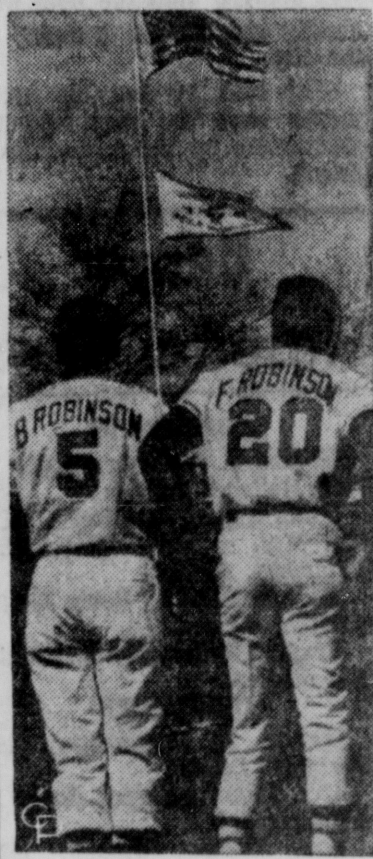

It was 42 degrees when Hargan started. One hour and 56 minutes later he fired a third strike past Harmon Killebrew, the 31st batter.

"He bows his neck and challenges them," said Tribe Manager Joe Adcock. "I'd like to see more of that. Steve didn't have a good spring training, but he kept working and working."

"He's got the pitches and control, and plenty of desire," Adcock continued. "He's some kind of competitor, and that's a lot of it, too."

Hargan gave up singles to Zoilo Versalles in the second inning and to Tony Oliva in the fourth. He struck out five and walked two.

The Indians got only four hits off starter Jim Grant. Sam McDowell (1-0) faces the Twins' Dean Chance (1-1) tonight.

THEY GAVE — Many organizations here conduct drives and give blood in groups when the Bloodmobile visits Circleville. Doing this recently were these members of the Pickaway County National Farmers Organization. Other groups responding in this way are the Pickaway County Ministerial Assn., American Legion, 4-H Clubs, school clubs, Home Demonstration Clubs and numerous civic groups.

Circleville will serve as host Friday when the Red Cross Bloodmobile makes its third visit of the year here.

The unit will be here on its first visit of the second quarter. Six more trips will be made before the year is over.

The Bloodmobile will set up usual operations at the First Methodist Church. Donors will be accepted from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Officials of the local Rotary Club sponsored blood program hope Friday's quota of 125 pints will be met. They said the vital livingest commodity is needed as much as ever.

SINCE the county's collection performance is evaluated each quarter, program officials noted that now is a good time to compare Pickaway's past record in comparison with other Central Ohio communities. Here are the statistics:

Pickaway barely "squeaked" through last quarter in eligibility for total coverage on blood needs. The county reached a figure of 90.4 per cent of Quota and was rated last of the 16 qualified counties.

County Chapters eligible for total coverage and their percentage of quota at the end of the first quarter were: Crawford 156.40; Galion 144.80; Delaware 134.00; Knox 126.40; Coshocton 118.30; Franklin 110.72; Licking 106.53; Miami 104.00; Fayette 103.60; Greene 101.60 Logan 100.00; Hardin 98.8; Fairfield 98.72; Shelby 97.60; Piqua Chapter, 96.00; and Pickaway County last with 90.40.

Counties limited to total coverage within their own jurisdiction were listed as: Madison 89.20; Crestline Chapter, 85.60; Hocking 84.80; Athens 83.36; Richland 80.48 and Ross with 80. Counties listed on probation for the second quarter of 1967

Smith Park May Be in Operation By Next Month

Latest developments indicate Smith Memorial Park on Maplewood Ave. will be in operation by the end of May.

A deed officially transferring the property to Circleville was recorded Tuesday at the Court-house. Plans to purchase playground equipment also have been completed.

The project, launched in 1964 by Charles H. Glitt, includes about an acre of ground on Maplewood Ave. The land was contributed by heirs of Phil E. and James I. Smith, and Mrs. Regina Corbett.

Arrangements for securing playground equipment were finalized several days ago at a meeting of the Smith Memorial Park Committee, members of the City Park Board and representatives from the Circleville Junior Women's Club. Gear amounting to approximately $1,253 will be purchased.

ACCORDING to the committee, initial equipment will include swing sets, sliding board, merry-go-round, see-saw units, fan shape basketball bankboard, giant stride and primary castle walk.

Members of the Smith Memorial Park Committee are Glitt, David Hoffman and Miss Bernadine Gillis. Taking part in the playground equipment study session were City Park Board members Harold Anderson, Richard B. Davis and Jack McGuire. Representing the Junior Women were Mrs. Ronald Spence and Mrs. Wayne Smith.

According to Glitt, George Johnson will serve as chairman of a Scioto Elks committee that will install the equipment once it is received here. He said John Robinson has volunteered to haul the items here from Indiana.

A drive to produce funds to purchase equipment was undertaken in 1965. Actual purchase was delayed until the land was legally cleared for transfer to the city.

Glitt said he and his committee hope the park will be functioning by the end of next month.
